Summary: (machine translated)
Also known as Canyon d' Escouret, it is a short, vertical canyon that can be combined very well with its brother Eths Gaudachs.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
See review

Access: (machine translated)
From Spain through the Somport pass, N330 (Candanchú) without going through the tunnel. As we go down we pass a horseshoe on the right and shortly after an exit to the left for the parking Sansanet.
From France we will go up to Somport on the N134-E7, past Urdos we leave the tunnel detour to one side and continue to the port, soon we have on the right the Sansanet parking.

Approach: (machine translated)
Approach Eths Gaudachs and Eths Caurets
We take the path that goes up to the Ibón de Estanés, cross the Gave d'Aspe and continue to the Escourets hut. Here begins the descent

Tour: (machine translated)
Vertical descent, with little water but very aesthetic. Spectacular rappels for the environment

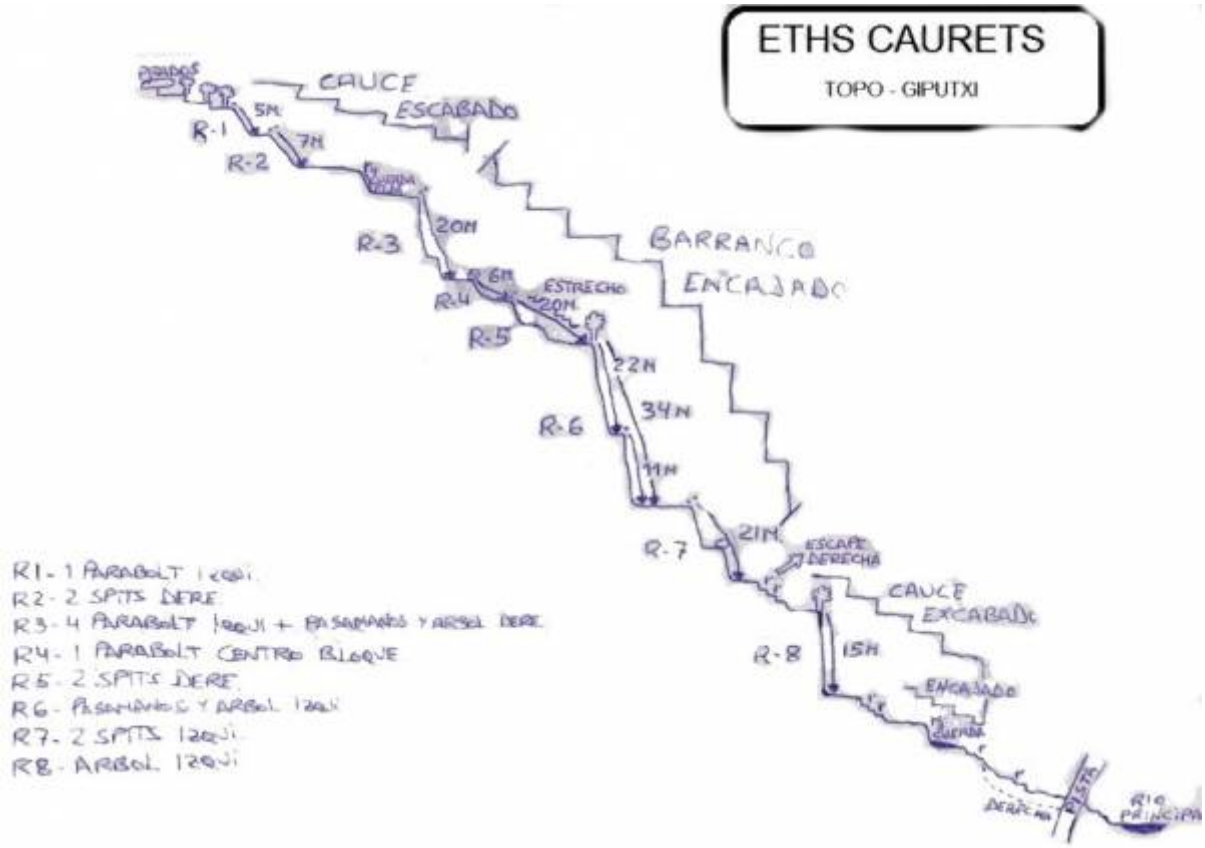

Return: (machine translated)
After the last rappel, we will have a fixed rope climb and a path to the right leads us to the trail. Same return as Eths Gaudachs so we can easily combine them.

Coordinates:
Canyon Start 42.9092 -0.5728
