Summary: (machine translated)
Ravine that descends from the cave of the same name. It has two parts, the first vertical and the second without much interest.
What this descent gives us is the possibility to visit the cave.
On 27/07/2025 the two rappels of the vertical of the first section of the canyon were reinstalled: First section: R6m (or handrail and clamps); R40m (orographic left), R30m (center). The theft of these installations has led to several rescues.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Several where the track crosses and after the waterfall

Access: (machine translated)
We must get to Orduña. Once there we go to the village of Tertanga and park our car.

Approach: (machine translated)
We follow the track that goes up the Orduña river, crosses it and when it crosses it again it becomes a path. We follow this winding path to the buttresses where we find the entrance to the cave. Access is via handrails and fixed ropes along a fairly exposed path.

Tour: (machine translated)
Normally dry in the first part up to the upwelling. Some first vertical rappels and a very easy second part. (27.07.2025-arRISKeus- Apodaka, J.) the P55 has been re-equipped after several rescues in the last months.

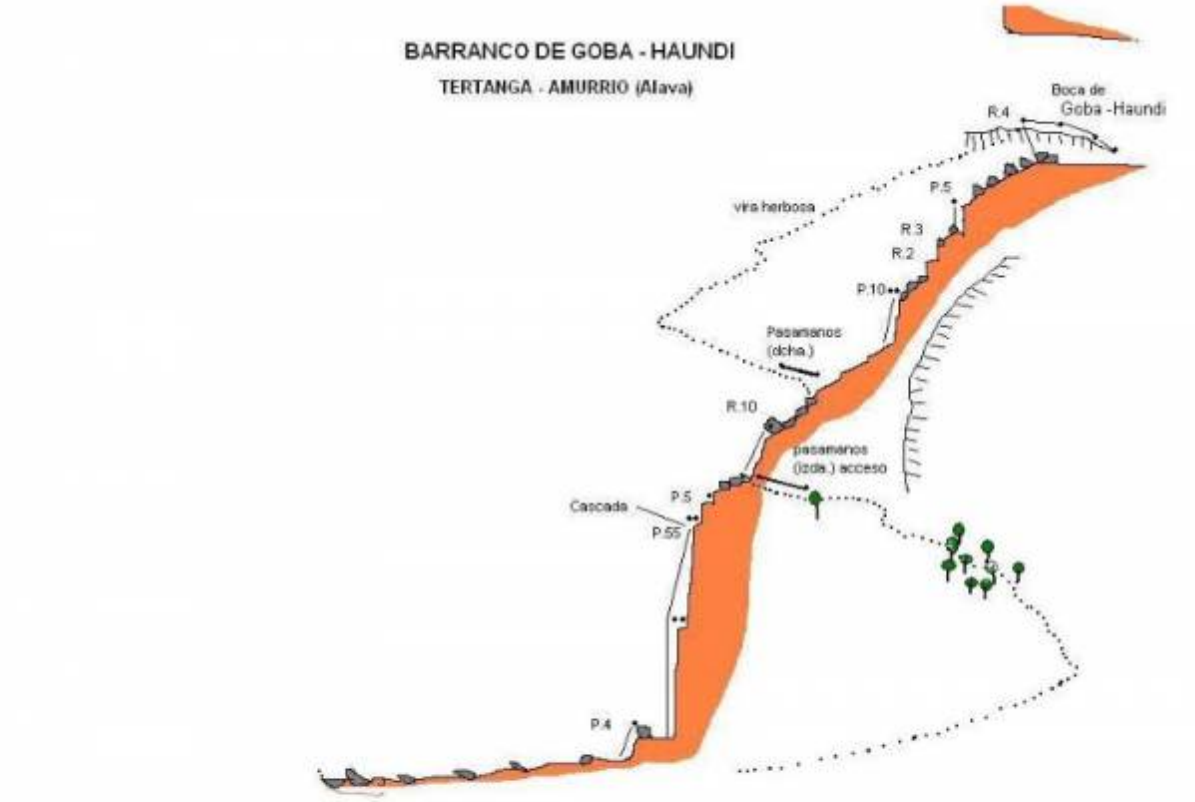

Return: (machine translated)
The riverbed leads us to the access road.

Coordinates:
Canyon Start 42.9714 -3.0400
