Summary: (machine translated)
The Parrizal de Beceite will make us enjoy areas of walkways with water, lush forests, equipped channels, ... and thousands of options for climbing, climbing and rappelling.
In this case the route that climbs the equipped channel of l'Ase and descends the channel of the Peonias is exposed. A totally sporty route in which it is necessary to dominate the progress in rock, the abseiling and the orientation.
Entries on the website of the village: https://www.beceite.es/turismo/rutas-por-beceite/parrizal-pesquera-pantano-de-pena/parrizal/

Hydrology: (machine translated)
None evident

Access: (machine translated)
We must approach to Beceite by the A-2412.
Cross the village looking for the signs to Parrissal and continue along the road/track. We will arrive at the barrier in 3kms (you have to pay to pass) and 3kms later to the parking.

Approach: (machine translated)
We follow the path of the Matarraña river (Matarranya) and before reaching the Estrets or Gubies de Parrissal there is a path to the right (cairn) that crosses the river and heads to the canal de l'Ase.
We do the Canal de l'Ase ascent that is semi-equipped with clamps (without life wire) and with fixed rope to save certain climbs. At the end we can approach the viewpoint (wonderful views).
Also when leaving the channel there is a small path that we must follow to the right. We must pay a little attention to follow it and follow the red dots that confirm the itinerary. In this section you have to try to maintain the height to reach the entrance of the Peonías canal.

Tour: (machine translated)
It starts from the rocky cirque and gets more and more boxed in. 14 rappels of all types in which it is necessary to pay attention to the installation because several are in natural.

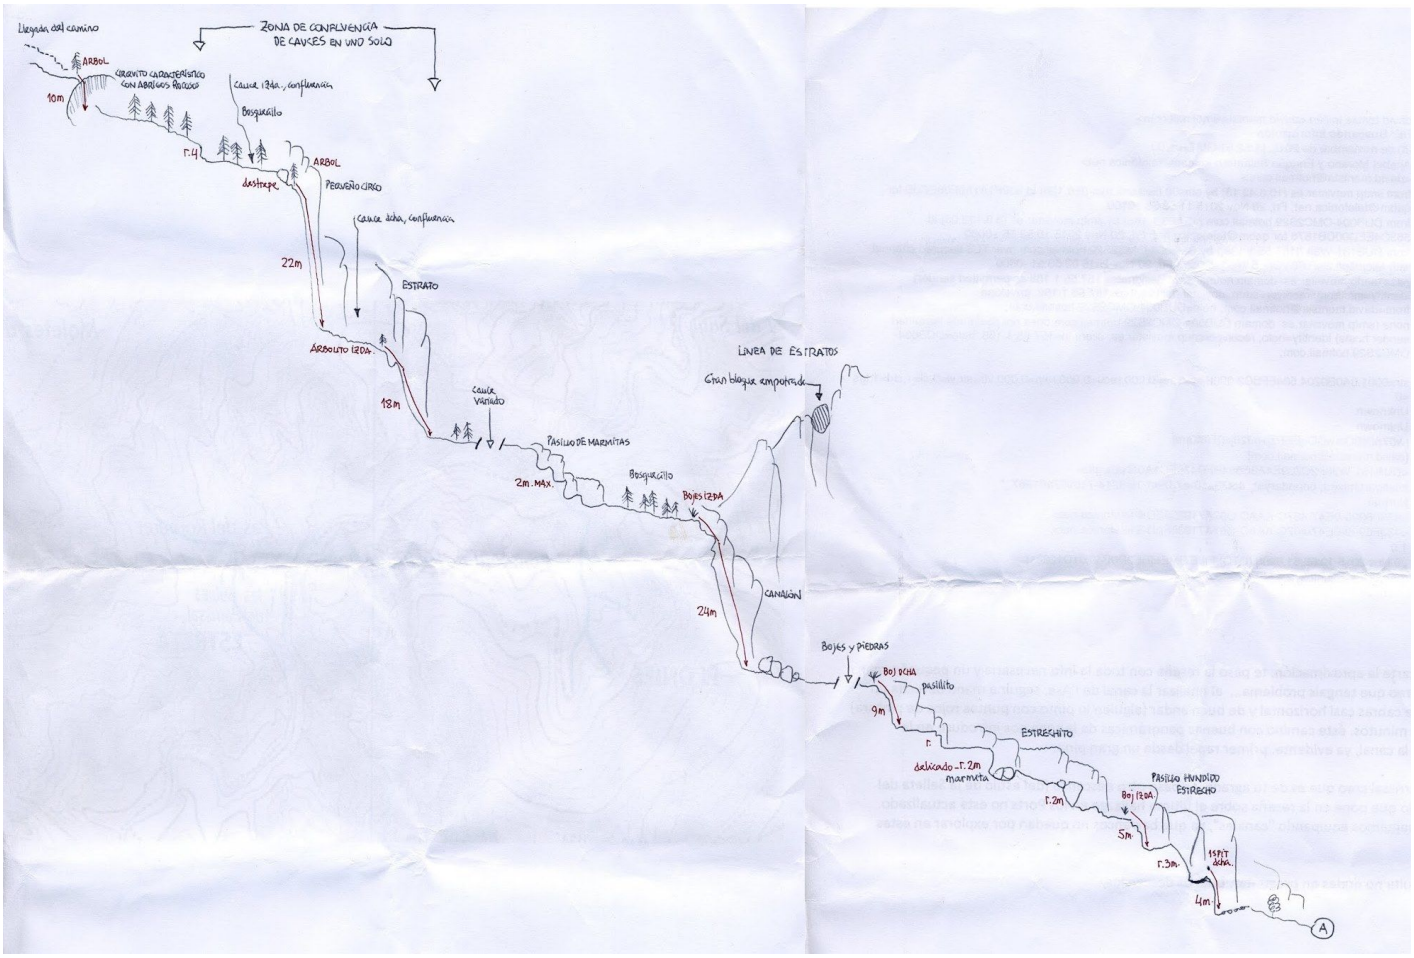

Return: (machine translated)
The canal ends in the path of the Matarraña river.
