Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Gully without big slopes but with a multitude of dexterity, slides and some jumps. In spring or rainy season it can have a high flow, a lot of caution because in a couple of points it can give us problems, especially the last rappel that has an interesting drosage.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
For most of the route, we will take the access path a few meters above on the right.

Access: (machine translated)
Take the N260 to Sort, continue on the C13 towards Rialp.
Just at the exit towards Llavorsí, there is the detour to the left to Escàs and Caregue. We will go up this beautiful valley and pass the small village of Escàs to get into the valley of the Riu Caregue. Arriving at the left curve over the river bridge we have plenty of room to leave the return car, or the car if we only have one.
With the access car we continue towards the village of Caregue and park the access car there.

Approach: (machine translated)
With a car you just have to go up to the village.
Once in the village of Caregue, in both options we will leave by the track that comes out behind the church and goes to Espot and the Ermita de Mare Deu. After about 1km we find a sharp left turn and a path in front, we will leave the track to get into the path.
Along this path we will go more than 1km until the path approaches the riverbed and we will access it.

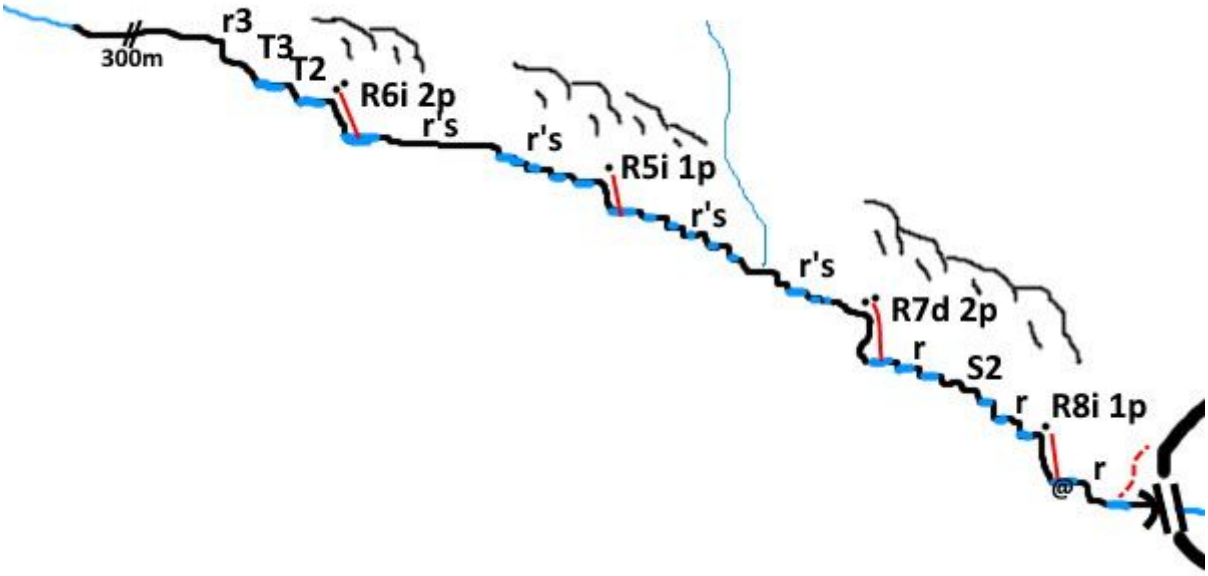

Tour: (machine translated)
Somewhat slippery, it is a descent that can be very aquatic and of entity. Be very cautious with water movements

Return: (machine translated)
Once we reach the bridge, we will exit to the left
