Summary: (machine translated)
Abseiling gorge with a few interesting abseiling sections in the water jet.

Hydrology:

Access:

Approach: (machine translated)
Orographic right up the hairpin bends to the Rote Wand, then continue to the next left-hand bend (approx. 1420m). Continue through the forest on the same contour line towards the stream (until you reach a path and rope traverse). Then descend at a suitable point and abseil over trees into the canyon (approx. 100m in total).

Tour: (machine translated)
Primarily abseils with walk/downclimbs in between. Smaller slides often not feasible due to the many obstructions. Generally very slippery canyon.

Return: (machine translated)
Follow the watercourse and return to the parking lot via the path.

Access is very difficult, definitely allow more time (than the 45 minutes given in the book)! Stands so far all ok, 2-3 cool abseils in the watercourse. (machine translated)
