Summary: (machine translated)
The Foncina canyon is a real collector's item, but the rest of the route is not worth the effort. A single 45m rappel and a fairly long walk make this activity a hiking with rappel.
Beautiful landscapes of the Sierra de Guara that we will cross in its access and a waterfall (the few times that carries water) very nice.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Except on the jump, once we get out of here feasible.

Access: (machine translated)
On the highway from Huesca to Barbastro, take exit 77 towards Abiego/Alquézar. Arriving at Abiego turn towards Bierge on the A1227. Pass Bierge and go to Morrano to the Peonera parking lot. We will find it after passing Morrano, one kilometer after a sharp left turn.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will leave by the track heading north towards the Foncina following the signs of Castillo Naya and Ermita San Martín. Cross the ravine and the track will climb steeply towards the castle, the Hermitage will be on the right. From here will come the hard part, an almost lost path that will lead us to the head of the ravine, marked on all maps but has been eaten by vegetation. We will go around until we reach an old track that we take to the left to get into the ravine.

Tour: (machine translated)
It only has the 45m waterfall

Return: (machine translated)
We will continue along the ravine until we find a parallel path that leads us to the uphill track.
