Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Open and dry descent except in winter when it can carry a trickle of water after rains. Very vertical with an abseil of 65m
INTENTIONAL BREAKS HAVE BEEN DETECTED IN THE RAPPELS, IN PRINCIPLE IT IS NOT POSSIBLE TO DESCEND!

Hydrology: (machine translated)
At the second rappel, you can climb up the girdle carefully, and exit on the orographic right to the upper part and to R1 if necessary, looking for the narrowest part to climb.

Access: (machine translated)
We will be located in Alcala de Júcar.
The access/return are comfortable with only one vehicle, we will explain where to park the two cars in case you want to combine them:
We take from the village the small road that leads to Tolosa and just at the entrance there is a track on the right to a bridge over the Júcar, we park the return car here.
The car of access we will have to go to La Gila, there we will park.

Approach: (machine translated)
From La Gila by the track that goes to the west, we will see the cut and the ravine. We will go down cross-country where we can best

Tour: (machine translated)
Vertical and open descent with only two rappels.

Return: (machine translated)
We will follow the riverbed until we see a small strip and a small path on the right that runs parallel to the riverbed and leads us down to the track next to the river Júcar and we will take it on the right.
If we have left the car in Tolosa we will only have to cross the bridge.
If we have to go up to La Gila, we will pass the bridge and 100m later a path comes out on the right that goes up to the village of La Gila.
