Summary: (machine translated)
A canyon in the Dos Aguas area that does not contribute much, it is pure and simple collecting, with a lot of vegetation, skills and anchorages that are somewhat old. Lots of rubbing on ropes and a long rappel of about 35-40m.
It is better to combine vehicles and avoid the summer.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Unverified

Access: (machine translated)
We have to be located in Dos Aguas, a beautiful Valencian village.
We will take the CV580 to Millares until pk 57, 100m before we have on the left a track that leaves us in the mine of La Plata, where we will leave the return vehicle. From here we can observe the ravines that are formed in this small cirque.
We will return almost to Dos Aguas and we will find on the right the detour to the path La Canal (several signs of Cave Paintings, trails, etc.). We will go along this half-asphalted track for 3km to the pass of La Plata where we will find on the right a small esplanade where we will park the access vehicle.

Approach: (machine translated)
Evidently, to the SW in search of the cuttings and then we turn right to the riverbed.

Tour: (machine translated)
See mole.
Very dressed riverbed, quite decomposed rock, anchorages something old and many rubs in the ropes. For lovers of adventure terrain, perhaps after rains, if we manage to catch it with water.

Return: (machine translated)
We arrived at the mine
