Ropes: 2x 55m

Summary: (machine translated)
3 first abseils without problems. Then 130 meter high rock face, divided into 3 abseils. Exit shortly before the last 3 abseils.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
After the first three reminders, there is no escape.

Always dry

Access: (machine translated)
From Huesca, take the road to Loporzano, Vadiello, cross the bridge over the Barranco de Isarre canyon, drive past the first parking lot and park at the end parking lot.

Approach: (machine translated)
The access is the same as to all the canyons in the area (Lazas, Escomentue...). Take the path that starts opposite the parking lot and follow it to the plateau. The ascent is strenuous. Turn left immediately and follow the cairns. Don't miss this first canyon: the next one is Lazas!

Tour: (machine translated)
3 first abseils without problems. Then 130 meter high rock face, divided into 3 abseils. Exit shortly before the last 3 abseils.
Belay on the wall. Pendulum for the last belay.

The descent through the canyon takes about 3 hours if you don't take the Palomo channel with you. In this case you have to add about 2.5 hours.
Both the ascent and the descent offer exceptional views of the entire massif.
Depending on the number of participants, the number of ropes must be well distributed, as there are only 2 places at each belay station.

Return: (machine translated)
Possibility of picking up the handrail again after the last crampon on the left and descending. Or, more interestingly, continue along the Palomo canal, which has recently been equipped with a new via ferrata, and then return to the parking lot.
