Summary: (machine translated)
Located on the left wall of the canyon, this is a brutal vertical, about 90m if it is not broken but with problems to recover ropes.
Only for experienced people!

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Not possible

Access: (machine translated)
From Antequera towards Valle de Abdalajís on the A343. Around pk 25 turn off to the Guadalhorce reservoir. We continue until a left-right crossroads where we have to continue to the left towards the reservoir. After 500m there is a small bridge and after 500m there is a track on the left where we park. From here we see the final part of the descent and see if it carries water.

Approach: (machine translated)
On the track where we parked we climb above the quarry. After passing it, there is a path to the right that puts us at the head of the ravine, we go around it and go to its wall, we will find some headers to mount handrails to the first rappel.

Tour: (machine translated)
Large vertical

Return: (machine translated)
The same of the ravine
