Summary: (machine translated)
Almost dry canyon, it usually carries a thread except after rains and has a couple of spectacular final rappels with an impressive final cliff.

Hydrology:
No

Access: (machine translated)
Fenollet East and West
We will go to the town of Organyà by the C14.
Fenollet East and West
Once in Organyà, direction Seu d'Urgell, in the center of the village before the right curve we have a detour to the left to Cabó. We go through here. At the exit of the village, at about 500m we will have a detour to the left to Font Bordonera/Fenollet/... we will take it and we will arrive to the village of Fenollet.
Just arriving at Fenollet the road makes a sharp left curve almost under the ravine with a place to park on the right.

Approach: (machine translated)
Fenollet East and West
We will leave by the road up to a track on the right that takes us to a reservoir. From the reservoir there is a pipe going up the slope towards the Fenollet font (the west ravine) when we get here we will turn right, almost in a northerly direction, looking for the marks to avoid these cliffs that lead us to the top. Once at the top we will see a track that we will leave to the left to get into the valley of the ravine.

Tour: (machine translated)
A well-fitted canyon with a few simple first rappels where the water tends to filter and lead us to the final cliff. 3 almost consecutive rappels, a first one of 10 that brings us closer to the one of 20 that is the anteroom to the pool from where we have the handrail to access the rappel of 43 on the cliff of Santa Fe.

Return: (machine translated)
After finishing the 43m rappel, we will pass a rock chaos and exit the slope to the right to the road.
