Summary: (machine translated) A beautiful, long canyon with final descents that offer views of the lake; the upper part carries little water, the lower part is always well watered. From an altitude of 585 m to the ford at 410 m, the water level is minimal in summer, but it is still a beautiful descent that I can recommend. You can only descend the lower part, where there is always water, from 410 m.

Access: (machine translated) In the Zù area, you can park either in front of the bridge over the stream or directly afterwards in a small clearing. By other means, it is possible to reach the Fonteno area and park in Piazza Bel Vedere.
Approach: (machine translated) If you park at the same parking lot, you can decide whether to descend the entire canyon or just the lower section via the forest road at 410 m above sea level. It is possible to ascend from the bottom via a path that can be seen near the lower parking lot next to the rockfall protection net; the first part is poorly marked.
Tour:
Return: (machine translated) The lower parking lot is clearly visible on the last few descents. After reaching the road, turn left onto the path on the left bank.
