Summary: (machine translated)
Rappel canyon, little water flow, relatively open.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We leave the Rhône Valley freeway at the St.-Maurice exit and head northeast through the hamlet of Lavey Morcles directly to the exit (see maps and Google aerial photo at carto.net).

Approach: (machine translated)
We take the path on the orographic left slope and reach a wide cirque in the ascent. Here we descend a track on sight into the streambed (cf. map section at carto.net).

Tour: (machine translated)
A few meters downstream we come to the first rappel. 16 more follow.
No jumps or slides. After the 28m rappel and a small 5m step the tour is over (see topographic view).

Return: (machine translated)
The wide gravel bed of the stream sth 50m down. Before the slide brake left out to the car.

Clear on the upper part. Beautiful But on the lower part: We put back 4 new moorings because some were old, other moorings seemed to be missing and others are in a sorry state, I think we should go once, go and do a sanitation of the lower part. (machine translated)
