Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Short, open and dry canyon, very vertical in its final waterfall. Perfect for accessing Infern a little higher than its sports part and extend the day combining them.
Caution if Infern carries water because you have to do a stretch along its bed to the PR.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Before the final waterfall because it is an open canyon.

Access: (machine translated)
From Pego on the CV-712 towards Vall d'Ebo.
At pk 8, before the Eco Burro Park, turn left onto a track and follow it for about 4kms to where you can no longer continue and park. There are some signs with information about the Infern ravine.

Approach: (machine translated)
We go back about 300m to the curve, we will see a track that goes down to some houses and another one that goes towards the fields, we take this one and we go NW direction crossing towards the riverbed.

Tour: (machine translated)
A simple first part to approach the large vertical that is divided into two parts.

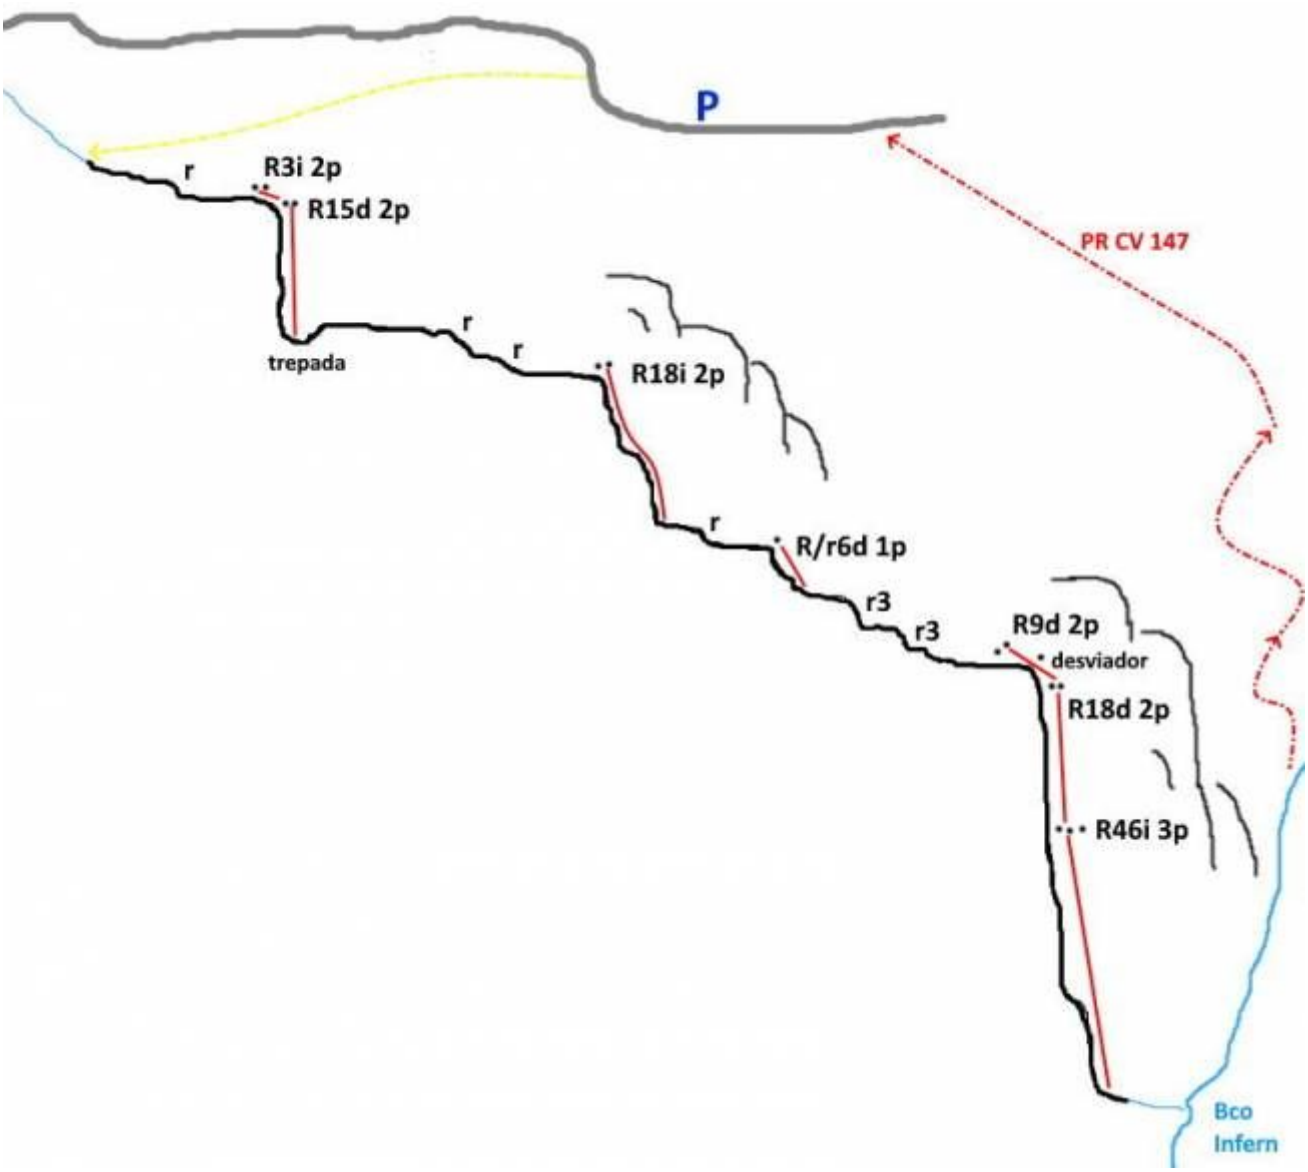

Return: (machine translated)
We arrive at the Infern, before its sports part. We will continue along the riverbed until the junction with the PR, here we can take it to the left to return to the parking lot or continue with the sports part of the Infern.

Coordinates:
