Summary: (machine translated)
Generally dry canyon except after heavy rains, with relatively simple rappels up to 32m that we can use to start.
Easy access by trail and return by atrochando to connect with Diablillo.
Ideal to combine with its neighbors Diablillo, Lere or Gato.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Not singles, it would be for atrochando/jabalineando

Access: (machine translated)
On the TF24, at km. 16,3
Access to Bcos Diablillo, Gato, Lere y Chirigel
On the right the Quimpi camp, on the left the track of El Centeno through which we will get almost 1km to a barrier where we will park.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will continue walking along the track towards the south. There are two branches, the one on the left, downhill, is where we will return, we go right gently uphill. After several curves we arrive at the ravine of Leres, we pass it and the next ravine is the diablillo and after passing the next hill under the Chirigel Mountain we will arrive at our descent.

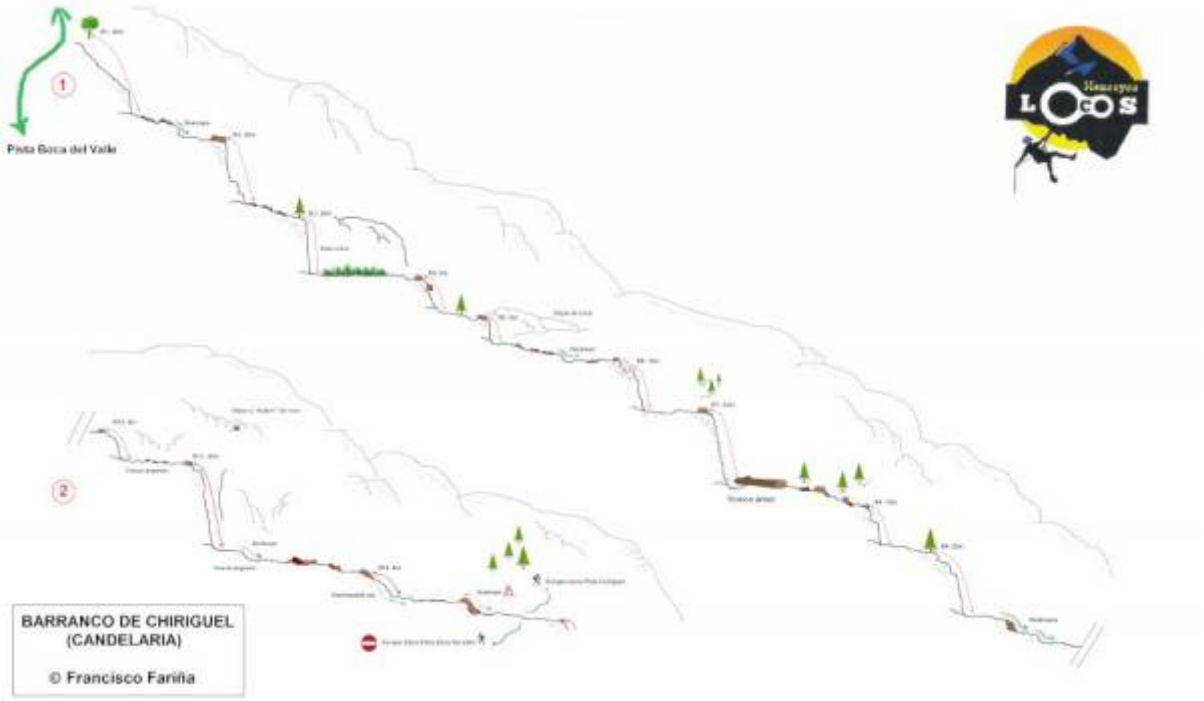

Tour:
Ver topo

Return: (machine translated)
After the last rappel there is a small exposed path to the left that will take us to the Diablillo gully, from here we will go to the return track of all the ravines in this area.
