Summary: (machine translated)
Born in the Serra do Xistral, like its neighbor Cancelas is narrow, winding, with lots of vegetation on both sides.
With good flow almost all year round and beautiful but somewhat slippery waterfalls.
It requires a combination of cars and its length will make us take almost the whole day.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Yes, several, especially on the left to take the slopes of that slope which is less dense.

Access: (machine translated)
We have to get to Valadouro
We will go south on the LU-P-0101 towards O Cadramón, at the height of p.k. 25 we have Freixido on the left and at the p.k. 24,2 the bridge over the river, we park the car of return where we do not disturb.
With the access car we continue one more kilometer until the detour to the right to Cortegaza, we leave it behind and after a right fork we will find a crossroads, we will go left, uphill towards the wind farm, when we reach the top we will go to the last mill, parking where we can without getting in the way.
Another option is to continue towards Ferrocente and park at the end of the road.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will follow the ridge to the last mill heading north to the riverbed.
If we have parked past Ferrocente we must follow this track that heads N-NW halfway up the slope to the riverbed.

Tour: (machine translated)
See mole
First part less aquatic, it will gradually pick up water flow. Stretches of walking alternate with rappels and abseiling.

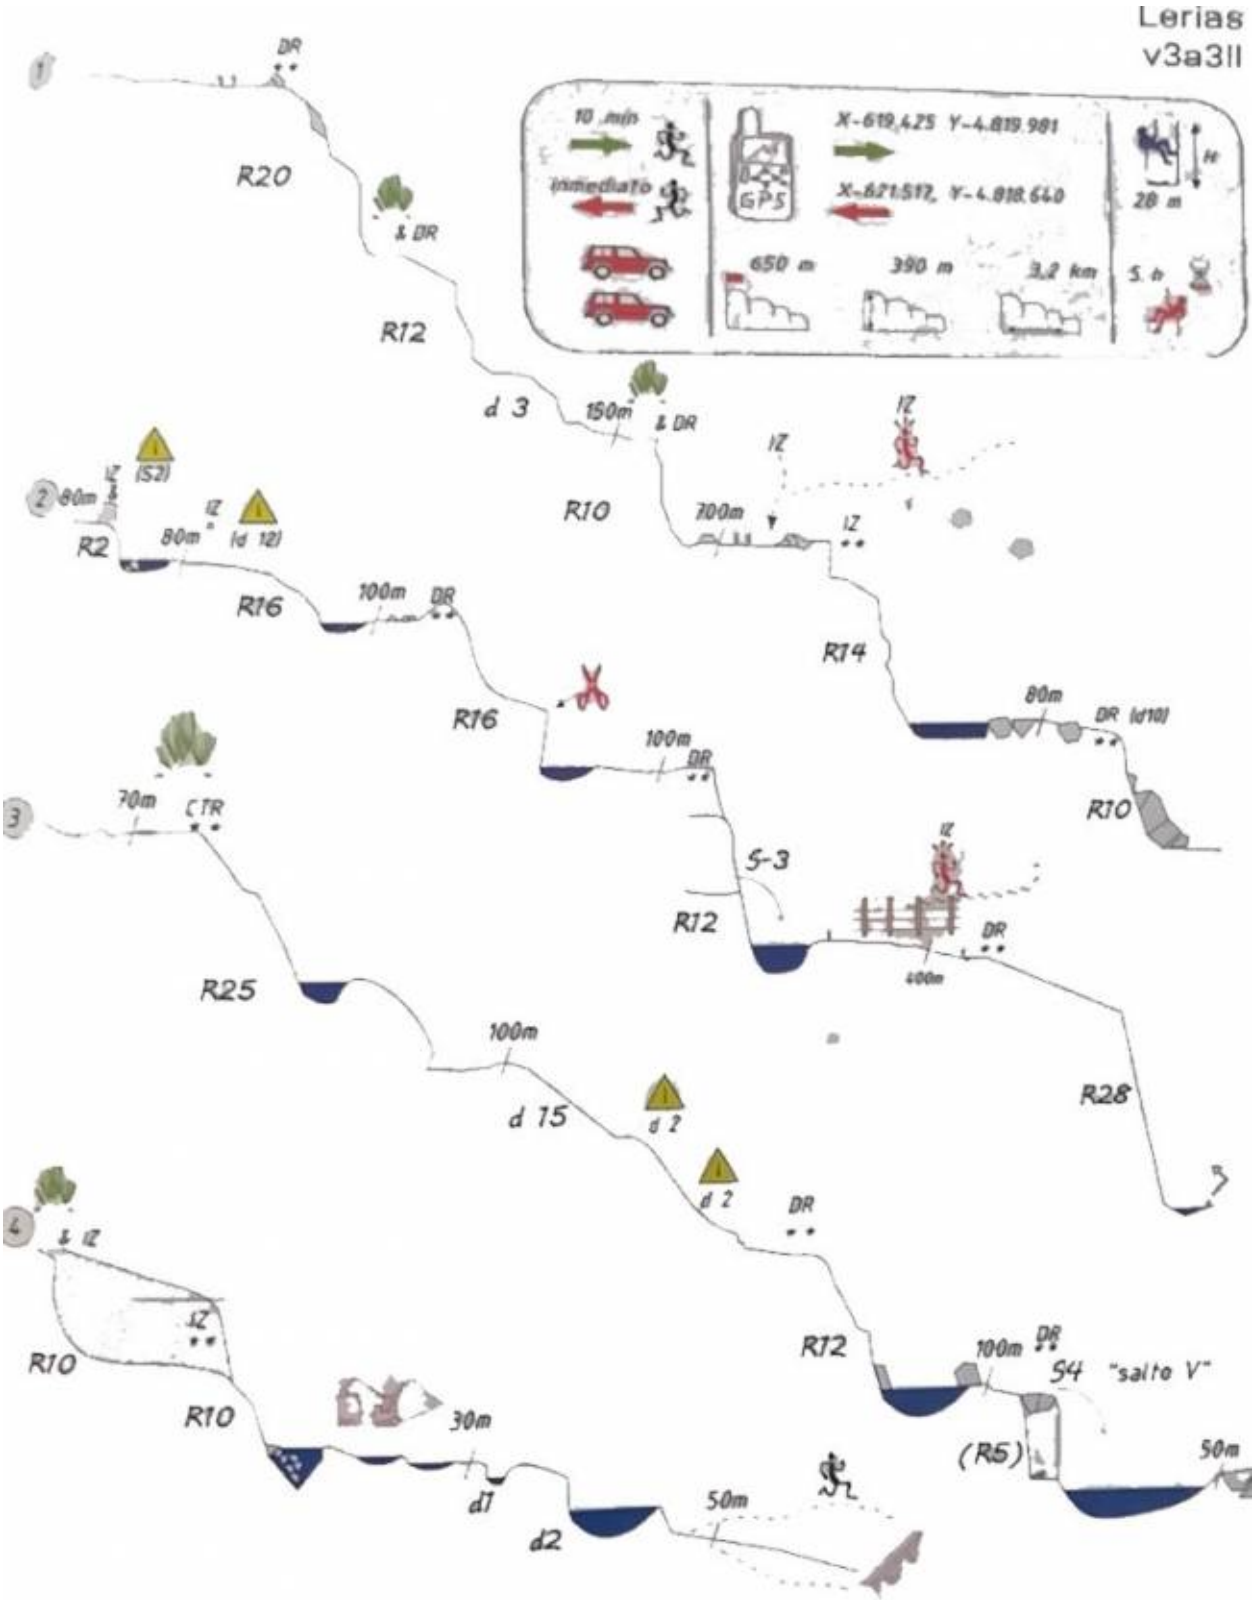

Return: (machine translated)
A few meters before the road, we go along the shore to the bridge.
