Summary: (machine translated)
Nice canyon to develop in spring, when we will find it with a good flow. A nice final gorge, a 75m fractional waterfall, the access between forests and its alpine character are the incentives to visit it at least once. Avoid summer because it will be dry or almost dry.

Hydrology:
Sí

Access: (machine translated)
On the A138 from Ainsa to France we drive up the Cinca valley towards Bielsa and after passing Parzán we arrive at the old border, where we park.

Approach: (machine translated)
After the customs office there is a path that goes up through the forest to an altitude of about 1650m. Nice views all the way up through the forest.

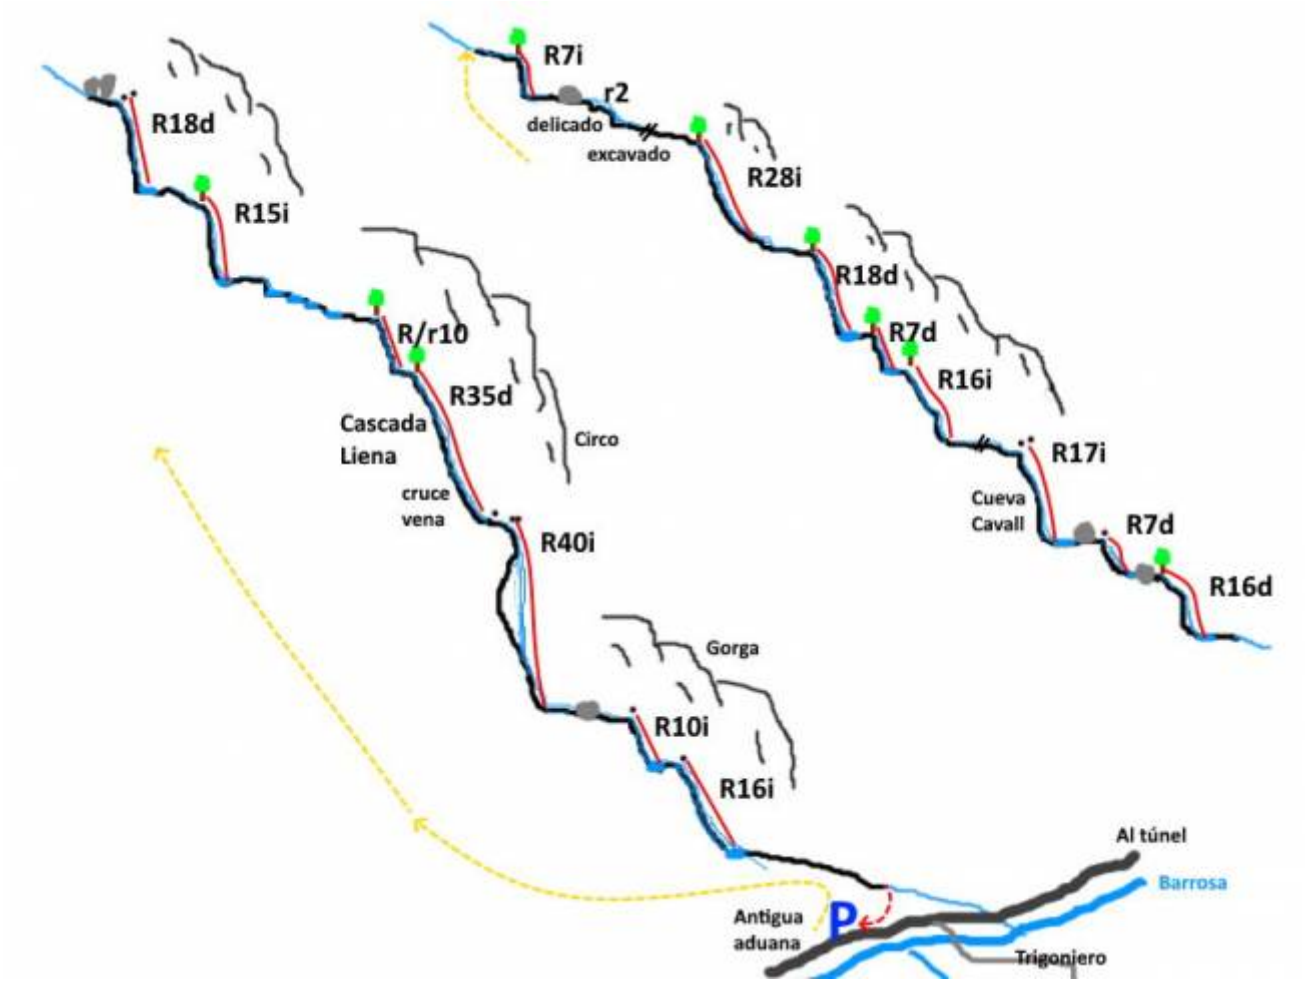

Tour: (machine translated)
The first part is more open, with steep slopes until reaching the rappel of 28, from here it closes at times forming small alpine gorges, much better formed and with more atmosphere than the first part. Finally we arrive at the waterfall of 70m fractioned, impressive with spring flows. To finish a small gorge

Return: (machine translated)
We follow the riverbed almost to the road, and then we turn right to the parking lot.
