Summary: (machine translated)

Also known as the barranc de la Cova del Garrofer. It is a simple descent with a long approach. Almost a collector's item

Hydrology: (machine translated)

In a rugged environment where it would be easy to get lost or become entangled, it is better to continue the course because it is difficult to get into trouble on this descent.

Access: (machine translated)

On the TV3421 that goes to Roquetes, right up to Mas de Barberáns.

Approach: (machine translated)

Along the path that goes up to Castell de l'Airosa, shortly before arriving we have the ravine on our right.

Tour: (machine translated)

Not very well defined, rappels very far apart except in the final stretch. A lot of kicking and kicking

Return: (machine translated)

We will continue along the riverbed until we reach the track that we will take on the right towards the Mas
