Summary: (machine translated)
Canyon on the southern slope of the Bielsa tunnel, on the road to the old port, an access with history for a beautiful canyon. Alpine stream quite open with natural rappels, lots of atmosphere and very cold water. In winter it forms a nice ice waterfall.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
In most of the descent

Access: (machine translated)
We have to go to the tunnel of Bielsa, for it we arrive at Ainsa and take the A138 towards France or from France by the D929 going up by St Lary-Soulan. Right next to the Bielsa tunnel we have parking space.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will leave by the path of the old port seeing the waterfalls at our side. The trail approaches halfway uphill (escape if necessary) and goes away again. Almost at 2000m we will see that the trail continues northward away from the whole and a cairn indicates a path to the left by which to access the headwaters.
If we want to avoid the first rappel/destrep we can access further down.

Tour: (machine translated)
Alpine descent, in naturals. Many of them can be avoided because the canyon is quite open.
In the big rappel, in parallel, on the orographic right, there is a natural in tree that allows you to reach a meeting, from which you descend a section by the active and that can end in the pool, but it needs a very long rope, about 100 m and difficult recovery (2024.07-P.Sanchez).
The best thing is that if they are going to descend by the orographic right, that the last one recovers the rope from above and descends by the orographic left from the tree and rappels of 16+60+25.(2024.07-P.Sanchez)

Return: (machine translated)
