Summary: (machine translated)
Dry canyon, well formed in conglomerate, entertaining and short, the problem is that it is overdressed in its first part.

Hydrology:
Si

Access: (machine translated)
By the N123 between Benabarre and Barbastro, we have the village of Estada, next to the p.k 11.7 we find the detour to Estadilla by the A133, or in the 9.5 by the HU910.
On the A133 at k.p. 28.5 there is a track to the village of Estada. 28.5 there is a track towards Bco de la Huerta or from the village heading north. We parked in a sharp bend of this track right next to the bank.

Approach: (machine translated)
We leave by the track that runs parallel to the bank by its orographic right in an easterly direction, after 500m the track heads north and there is a path to the E that we will take. About 300m later we will have surpassed the ravine and we will see the bed to our right and the slope to go down.

Tour: (machine translated)
Gully very dressed in its first part, then conglomerates forming narrow as many projections and embedded blocks. A very entertaining place to enjoy the skills.

Return: (machine translated)
Once it opens, we turn right to the west to look for the uphill track.

Coordinates:
