Summary: (machine translated)
Under the rock of the same name "Diví o Divino" is this magnificent canyon sculpted between walls. Dry canyon except for torrential rains and with a somewhat compromised access, it has a spectacular end in which we will descend 80m in 3 rappels, special attention to the penultimate rappel that is a hanging installation where only 3 people fit.

Hydrology:
No

Access: (machine translated)
From Villajoyosa we take the CV770 towards Orxeta and Sella, we will pass Orxeta and continue straight on to Sella.
Just at the entrance of the village we have the detour to the right to the Barranc de L'Arc, follow this little road to the Font de l'Arc (we can follow the signs PR CV9 - Benimantell) are 4 km.
We can park here or continue straight on along the PR CV9, about 700m and almost next to a house we have a place to park a couple of cars.

Approach: (machine translated)
Right there, next to the walls, there is a marked path that goes around the walls approaching the Cova del Diví, we will turn right to get into a watercourse under the gaze of the Diví rock. Some milestones / cairns and some red dots will elevate us through this valley, leaving the ravine to our left.
Passing a ledge we will see a sign indicating the entrance on the left.

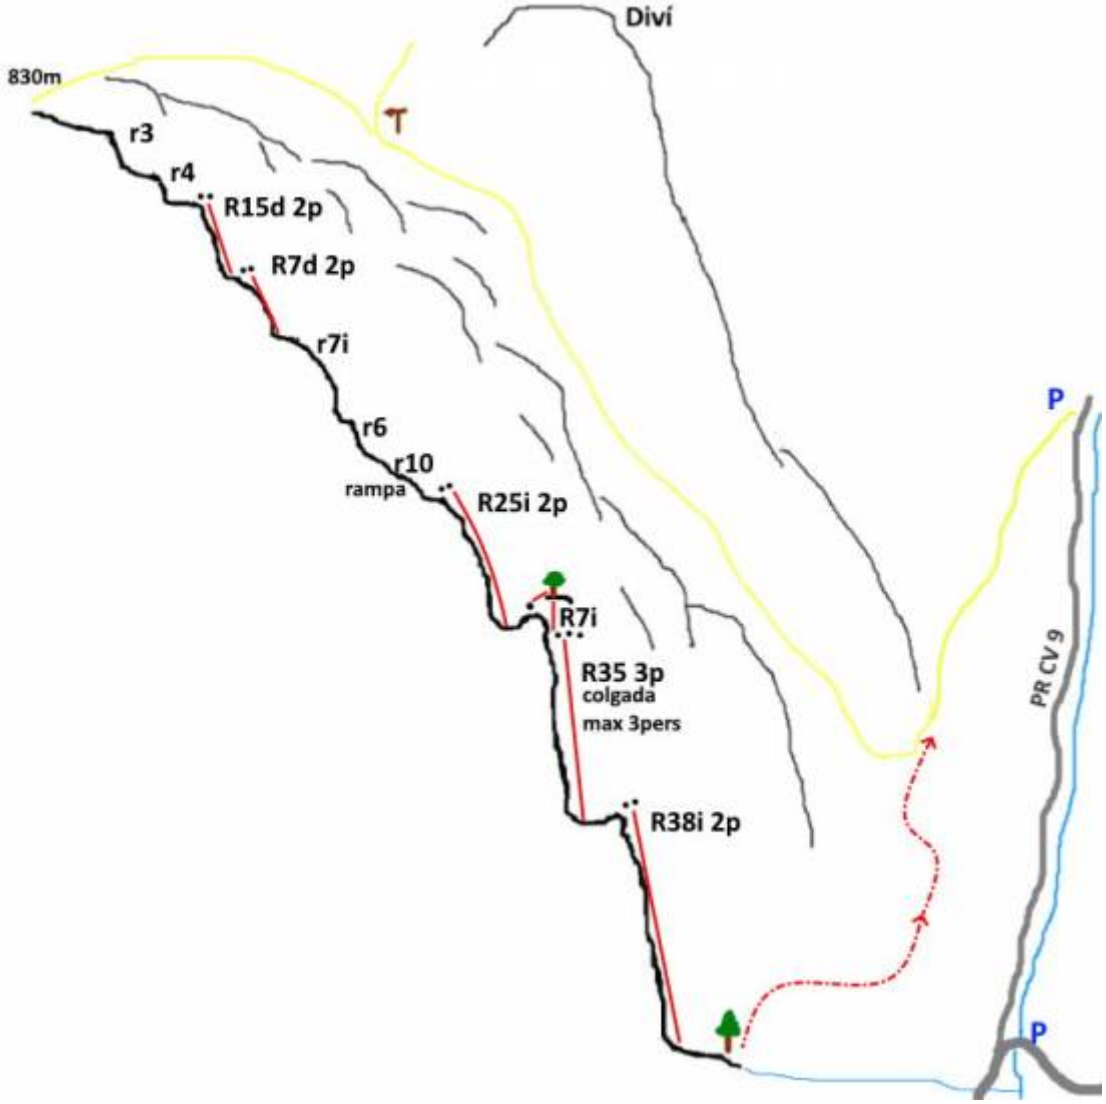

Tour: (machine translated)
Some first short rappels and abseils will bring us closer to the interesting part of the canyon. We will link an R25, with a hanging R35 which is accessed from a bush making a natural 7m. In the hanging meeting we can only be 3 people. We will only need the R38 to reach the base.

Return: (machine translated)
We will see a small path on the left that will take us to the access path.
