Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Vertical canyon, generally without water or with a thread that will require good rope management. Caution in the accesses to the head when the rock is wet.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Before the large vertical on the left

Access: (machine translated)
By the N541 between O Carballido and Pontevedra
At the height of p.k. 55 is Soutelo de Montes, here we turn to Vilariño, we cross it and arrive at Fixó. We will turn right and along the tracks we go up to the wind farm. We will park in the row of mills next to the Miradoiro de Grobas, between the northernmost mills.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will leave by the track that goes north from the 2nd mill (starting to count from the north) of this row of 6.
The track goes in the direction of the next row of mills, down to the bed of our stream and back up again (this is where we return).

Tour: (machine translated)
A couple of rappels to approach the great vertical. Once down and almost without difficulties to Grobas.

Return: (machine translated)
Almost at Grobas we have another stream on the right and a track on the left, we take it and go up the slope to the mills above. From the top we can see where we have parked
