Summary: (machine translated)
Very vertical ravine in its first part and more aquatic after its confluence with Carboneres. Better to do it in spring because in summer it is dry.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Impossible in the cirque. In Carboneres on the uphill trail.

Access: (machine translated)
From Beceite: road to les Pesqueres (sign). It goes up the Ulldemó river. Park where the road ends (there is space).

Approach: (machine translated)
We go up the river Ulldemo. We pass the "Estrets del Regatxol", to the right is the end of the ravine of Les Carboneres, we get in here by a path marked with milestones. At 720m altitude we will see that the ravine closes and we go to the right to overcome a small waterfall, returning to the bed of Carboneres cross and take a channel in front. We will go up to the pass. Once here we see the access to the great cirque.

Tour: (machine translated)
A very aerial first part with the cirque and its access to descend to Carboneres. From here, especially in spring, much more aquatic.

Return: (machine translated)
We will arrive at the Ulldemó river where we will return by the access road.
