Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
A canyon with a very vertical and interesting first part and a second part without much interest.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
On the vertical slopes, it is possible to escape, but very delicate due to the steepness of the slope.

Access: (machine translated)
We must get to Orduña. Once there we take the A3618 (old BI3931) and then BI4532 to Lendoño-Goikoa (Lendoño de arriba). Just before arriving there is a parking area on the left.

Approach: (machine translated)
We go up the track that goes up and becomes a path. After passing the beech forest (the Black Trail) we can see to our right the ravine and in front of us the Portillo de Barrerilla. At the top we turn right over the cliffs in search of the stream and the source of Iturrigorri.

Tour: (machine translated)
Very vertical canyon for lovers of long descents and almost without rest. At the end of the vertical zone we can go out to a track to our left that takes us to the village or follow the ravine but this second part loses interest.

Return: (machine translated)
At the end of the vertical zone, we come out onto a track on our left that leads to the village.

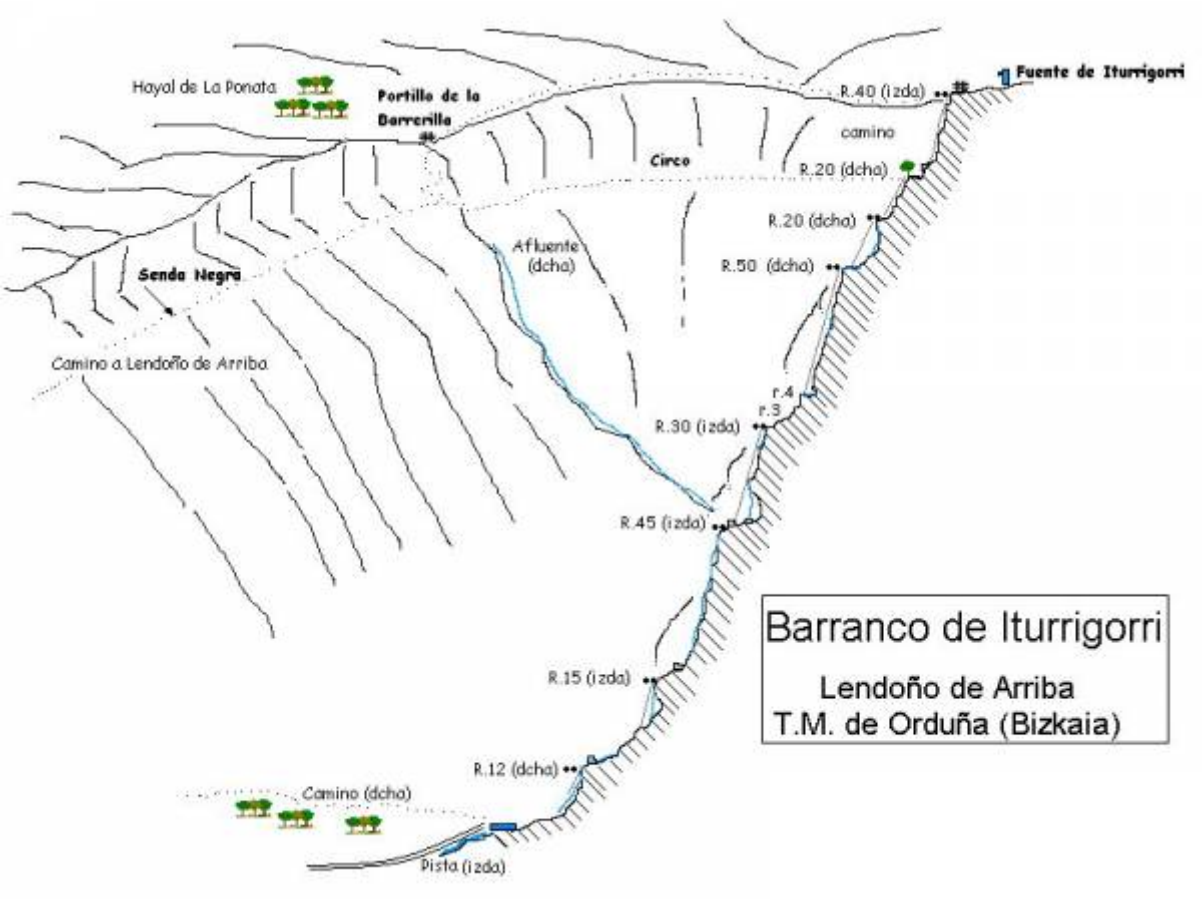

Coordinates:
Canyon Start 43.0139 -3.0564
