Summary: (machine translated) Varied rapell canyon, can be violent with proper water flow
Hydrology: (machine translated) http://www.saihebro.com/saihebro/index.php?url=/datos/ficha/estacion:A102
Access: (machine translated) Coming from Lleida, we take the C-13 via Balaguer and Tremp in the direction of Pobla di Segur. Not quite 1 km after passing Tremp, we turn left off the C-13 towards Gulp. We cross a cordoned-off military area (barracks) and may be asked by the guard to identify ourselves. After a few kilometers we come up to Gulp. We drive up to the group of houses at the back and find a large area to park our car on the left.
Approach: (machine translated) Already here signs show the way to the canyon. We set course for Font de Moli and a whitewashed spring house. We do not follow the markings that point downward, but continue at about the same altitude and come to the Barranc de Comes, which is joined a little above the Barranc de Llagunes. The Comes is an orographic. right side ditch of the Caramell. Here is usually the entry.
Tour: (machine translated) 6 rapells, some possible jumps, a natural arch
Return: (machine translated) When the canyon opens up and the streambed becomes flat, we head out to the right at the oaks and keep heading up towards Gulp (markings sometimes a little confusing).
