Summary: (machine translated)
Homogeneous rappel canyon without runs

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
From Castejon de Sos in the Valle de Benasque, we drive south on the A-139 towards Graus, Barbastro. After 7 km, we turn right at the houses of La Catalana onto the HU-V-6411 and drive up via Seira in the direction of Barbaruens. 6.3 km after crossing the Rio Esera, a forest road branches off to the right in a long left-hand bend (information boards). We park our first car here for the exit.
In the second car we drive further up to Barbaruens (almost 2 km). 100 m before reaching the village, we turn left onto a dirt road that leads uphill - steeply in places. At a fork (about 2.8 km from Barbaruens) we turn right and reach the streambed of the Arroyo de Bilse. From here on, you have to make your own judgment as to where the car can go on the deteriorating track (otherwise park the car and continue on foot). About 1.4 km after passing the Bilse, we come to some small huts where we park the second car.

Approach: (machine translated)
Continue on the slope for about 2.5 km, then the slope crosses the streambed of the Trigas (entry).

Tour: (machine translated)
12 rappel, then we are in the riverbed of the Aigüeta de Barbaruens. Descending this we come to the Puente de la Saca.

Return: (machine translated)
We get off on the bridge and walk the path south to the lower car.
