Summary: (machine translated)
Nice but short waterfall of only 4 rappels but with a very interesting final R50. The downside is that the descent is prohibited, the strange rules that govern us have allowed the installation of a ferrata in those same walls but not the descent of the canyon.
This beautiful waterfall is reviewed here in case someday sanity returns and both activities are allowed, not only the one that allows a few to make a profit.

Hydrology:
Sí

Access: (machine translated)
In the area of Ponga on the N625 between Riaño and Cangas de Onís.
At p.k. 134,5 we have the Vidosa bridge, with the via ferrata, a hotel-restaurant, etc, just over the bridge of the Sella. We parked.

Approach: (machine translated)
We have the option of doing the ferrata and at the end take the path that climbs to the waterfall, or leave by the path of the steps, cross the bridge and also take the path that climbs gradually to the side of the waterfall. We will continue towards the water outlet of aguasaliú passing by a granary.

Tour: (machine translated)
A little below the upwelling we start between blocks to reach the first rappel, from here the canyon will become more vertical until R50.

Return: (machine translated)
When we reach the bridge, we take the access road.

Coordinates:
Canyon Start 43.2118 -5.0849
