Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Collector's canyon without technical difficulties, stony progression in an area with little traffic.
Better to avoid central hours in summer

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Possible but complicated

Access: (machine translated)
We must get to Callosa d'En Sarrià. We have several alternatives.
From Benidorm we will take the CV70 towards La Nucia. When arriving at La Nucia we will continue by the CV70 to Polop and from here the CV715.
From Altea by the CV755 we will also go directly to Callosa.

Approach: (machine translated)
Once parked at any of the marked points (or in the village itself), we will proceed to climb up to the pirulo from the village along the cemented track. After it leaves a path along the ridge of the mountain climbing the 400m of unevenness. When reaching a summit we will have the entrance to the ravine just to the west, downhill to a small valley that is becoming wider.

Tour: (machine translated)
Very overgrown with vegetation and difficult progression due to loose stones

Return: (machine translated)
We will follow the riverbed to the road
