Summary: (machine translated)
Rappel canyon with some interesting moments

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
From Sagone, on the east coast, take the D70 to Vico (Vicu). After passing through the village, at the fork in the road, turn left onto the D 156. A few hundred meters after passing through the hamlet of Chigliani, you come to the bridge over the Catena (beautiful waterfall also below the bridge), where you park the first vehicle and continue with the second, passing through the village of Letia, gaining altitude in a few switchbacks and returning to the Catena (after the bridge, park the second vehicle on the left).

Approach: (machine translated)
Entry directly below the bridge.

Tour: (machine translated)
Note the large natural arch next to the canyon (Arca di Catena, also visible from the road) and the pile of car wrecks at one point on the edge of the stream. It is not necessary to use the belay at the high waterfall (5 m/25 m), as the rope is easy to pull off even when roping through.

Return: (machine translated)
At the water diversion out to the right and on paths down to the parking lot at the lower bridge, basically about parallel to the stream. The one could also descend further after the water diversion, but it is no longer secured there.
