Summary:
Mostly open canyon with games through multi-layered volcanic rock. Popular option after or during rainfall. Views of the Ocean and arrival on the beach (expect lots of rubbish, possibly contaminated water).

Hydrology:
First canyon to catch water, due to a large catchment area and a more impenetrable rockbed.

Access:
Park in Iñaza, near the park. Leave no valuables in the car.

Approach:
Walk away from the buildings into the open at first, crossing two small river beds before arriving in el Muerto.

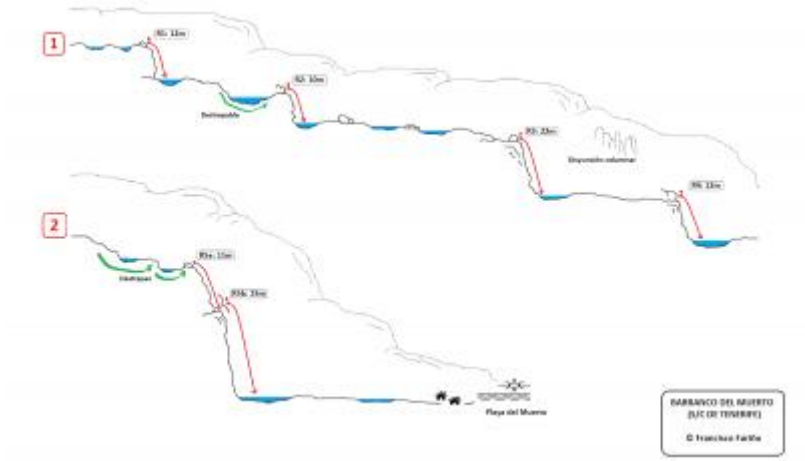

Tour:
Starts with a jump, followed by a slide and an abseil/jump. A small walking section. A couple higher waterfalls and the final section to the beach. Some handlines to install.

Return:
Through the settlement, followed by a cemented track upwards diagonally towards the village, crossing a small canyon. Arriving in town, there's a few steps to the car.
