Summary: (machine translated) hiking canyon with a few small rappels

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
As for the Infern: from Lleida via C 13 via Tremp to Pobla de Segur. From here on the N 260 northeast towards Sort. About 9 km after Pobla de Segur we drive through a tunnel. Immediately before the next tunnel you can park the car relatively burglar-proof.

Approach: (machine translated)
About 50 m back on the N 260, a marked path begins on the righthand side, which we initially follow up to a ridge. On the other side, it runs almost horizontally for some time. We pass the snake grotto. Then it turns to the west and descends to the stream. This would be the entry to the lower part (610m old).
To get to the upper entry, continue along the footpath for about 100m and then turn right uphill (NW) at an acute angle. This path to the Sant Pere de les Maleses cave monastery leads us back to the stream (630m old), staying almost at the same altitude.
We can also approach here from the south, see https://es.wikiloc.com/rutas-descenso-de-barrancos/barranco-san-pere-52671410

Tour: (machine translated)
We hike and climb down the stream in a wide basin. 13 small rappels.

Return: (machine translated)
Before the old road bridge on the left up to the N 260 (fixed ropes and chain). On the old road northwards through the Desfiladero de Collegats. As we pass by, we see the inconspicuous mouth of the Infern on the right and the thin steel cable stretched across the river, then later next to the new N 260 to the car.
Those who have parked their car there will at least be able to find the other parking lots using the map.
