Summary: (machine translated)
Magnificent canyon with two parts that can be done independently or both in the same day. The intermediate section is better not to do it, it is a walk without more. To climb to the upper area is a good walk but it is worth it.
Alpine, with great waterfalls, great environment and lots of water. Better to do it in summer if we do not know how to manage large flows.
Besiberri ravine, in the third ràpel of the upper part of the ravine, is unequipped (3.9.2025).

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Yes, in several parts

Access: (machine translated)
On the N230 between Pont de Suert and Vielha.
At the height of p.k. 149.5 towards Vielha, we have on the right the detour to the refuge of Conangles. We parked

Approach: (machine translated)
Approach by wooded area at all times, a cool and very pleasant approach in summer.
We leave by the Besiberri track (south direction) after 5 minutes we turn left to the Besiberri ravine. The track is making big loops, along the path we can go shortening. When we take about 40 min, at an altitude of 1660m, the track goes south across the ravine, this is the access to the bottom.
We continue on the trail up the orographic right less than 1km to 1770m, where the trail crosses the ravine, exit of the upper part. We will continue climbing, now on the orographic left, in a continuous zig-zag until we surpass the walls that enclose the Besiberri Lake, along its shore we will go to the drainage area, the beginning of the Upper Besiberri.

Tour: (machine translated)
Very alpine descent, the upper part with less water but longer rappels. The lower part is more flowing.
In between, the intermediate zone is of no interest.

Return: (machine translated)
From the upper part, just as the trail crosses the ravine.
From the lower part, when we reach the bridge of the track below, we will have to go up the track to the car.
