Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Interesting ravine in its initial part with great verticals that needs a combination of cars.
ATTENTION: The cattle ranchers of the zone usually throw the dead animals here, with what it entails. In case of wanting to do it, much better after rains so that it cleans.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
After the upwelling when the ravine opens.

Access: (machine translated)
From Orduña by the A2521 we arrive at Artomaña, we cross it and by the track that crosses the railway line we approach the Berrakarán river. We park the car there on the way back.
We return to the A2521 and go up to Unzá/Untzaga, at the end of the village there is a track that goes to the head of the ravines, soon there is a parking area.

Approach: (machine translated)
We follow the course of the stream

Tour: (machine translated)
First very vertical and interesting part that usually does not usually carry water. After the upwelling the river will carry water but surely the smell of dead animals will make us consider taking one of the escapes that are there.

Return: (machine translated)
It is almost immediate by the path on the right bank.

Coordinates:
Canyon Start 42.9691 -2.9624
