Summary: (machine translated)
Also known as Padral ravine, it is a small jewel next to Vandellós. Open, dry, very short because it has only 3 rappels, but with a vertical of 75m split very aesthetic and with good views.

Hydrology:
Si

Access: (machine translated)
We will have to get to Vandellòs on the C44.
We will continue along the C44 towards the coll de Fatxes and just when we arrive we have a detour to the right to Pratdip by the T311. We will go about 3.5 kms until the p.k. 36,5 where we have a left curve with a place on the right to park. From here the ravine is visible in all its extension.

Approach: (machine translated)
From the parking lot, we only have to go down to the riverbed.

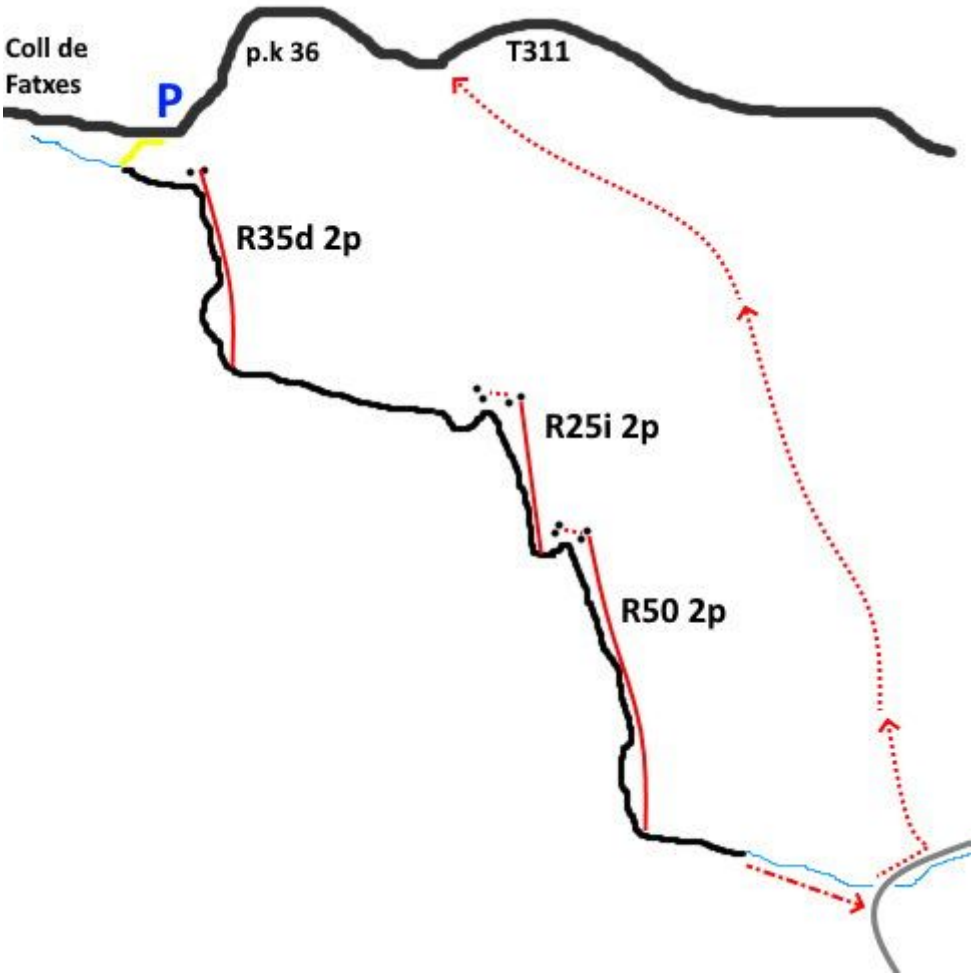

Tour: (machine translated)
Shortly after reaching the riverbed we find a first rappel very little vertical except for the final stretch that has a hollow. We will walk a small stretch of the riverbed until we reach a pool just before the great vertical. We will find installation to the left for handrails because the rappel is somewhat exposed. This rappel leaves us in a small pool in which we have another handrail to make the great vertical of about 50m.

Return: (machine translated)
After the Salt we will see a path on the orographic right that leads to a track, we will follow it downhill. Soon (50m) we will see a sign that indicates a PR to the left by the Estrets dels Vidriers where we will go up to the road. From here we will only have to walk 1km to the parking lot.
