Summary: (machine translated)
Dry canyon, almost a collector's item, with a vertiginous vertical of 50m. Good facilities, not overdressed and with the possibility of combining several canyons in the same day.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
In the vertical

Access:
Desde Berga dirección Puigcerdà por la C16, pasando el pantano tenemos el desvío a la izquierda a St Corneli y St Josep por la BV4025, preciosa carretera del Berguedá que zigzagueando va subiendo por la montaña, entre bosques, adquiriendo cada vez mejores vistas sobre el valle. Esta zona en otoño es sencillamente una maravilla de colores.
Accesos Bcos Sant Corneli
Antes del km1 llegaremos a La Consolació, unos 200m antes tenemos una curvita de izquierdas con una pista a nuestra izquierda por detrás y otra a la derecha hacia delante. Aparcamos el coche de retorno.
Seguiremos a Sant Josep con el vehículo de acceso pasamos el km3 y a los pocos metros el desvío a la izquierda a St Corneli, pasaremos por el museo de las minas y seguimos por la carreterilla de la izquierda, dejamos el mirador a la izquierda y 50m después tenemos una curva muy cerrada de derechas (aparcamiento de Polvorí Vell) hacemos la curva y la contra curva de izquierdas, una pequeña recta de 100m para otra curva de derechas tras la cual aparcaremos.

Approach: (machine translated)
Access to Bcos Sant Corneli
From the place where we parked it is obvious, to the southwest looking for the best way to go down to the dry river.

Tour: (machine translated)
A first part without anything to approach the vertical, here we will have a first short rappel and then we will see how the cirque opens below us, at which point we have the 50m rappel, be careful when descending there is vegetation at the bottom. We will have one more short rappel and from here on we will be able to descend through areas with a lot of vegetation.

Return: (machine translated)
When it starts to open more clearly, without reaching the tracks of the old power plant, we go left to go down diagonally, heading east, always leaving the remains of the power plant on the right, we will stop at the upper tracks and we will leave them until we find one that goes north, here we will go to the road just where we parked.
