Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Generally dry canyon except for rains. A somewhat fattened and interesting area. Necessary combination of cars, with 4×4 you can almost reach the headwaters. Practically collecting

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Yes, by the road that crosses the ravine.

Access: (machine translated)
From La Seu d'Urgell or from Sant Llorenç de Morunys on the C-462.
At p.k. 53,6 we have the detour to Sorribes de la Vansa and Ossera. We will pass Sorribes towards La Barceloneta, just halfway we have an esplanade in which to park the car back.
We return to Sorribes direction Montargull and soon we take the detour to the right to Ossera. We will go up to the beautiful village, just at the entrance we have parking on the right.
If we have 4×4 we will cross the village and continue along the track that goes up to Coll d'Ares, after a kilometer we reach the Torrent de Vernús where the track turns south and we have another, in worse condition that goes to the right by which we will get in. About 700m later we have another track on the right that crosses our stream, we park.

Approach: (machine translated)
Same access from Ossera as in 4×4.
Once we cross the stream we will go down until we find the first difficulties.

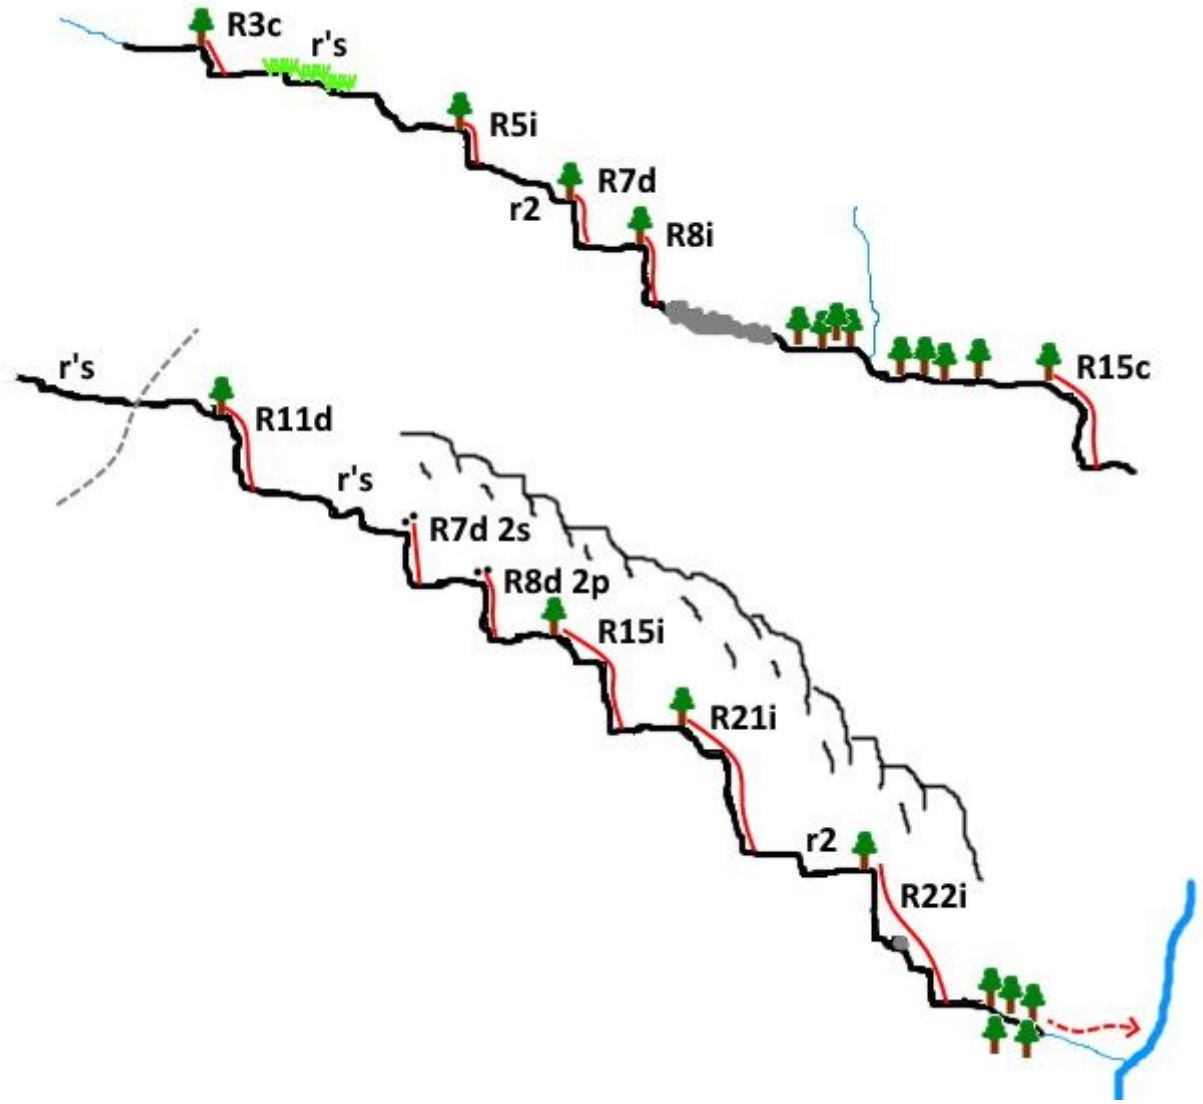

Tour: (machine translated)
Open in its first part and somewhat more closed after crossing the road. Very wooded all the way and without big rappels until almost the end of the descent.

Return: (machine translated)
Just at the end of the ravine we will see a meadow and on the other side a footbridge to cross the river, we go up to the road and go to our car.
