Summary: (machine translated)
Gorge or river excursion with relatively fast and comfortable approach and returns.
The descent is very natural through a green forest that ends in four interesting rappels.
Located in the region of Eo-Navia next to the Arbón reservoir. It allows to visit little inhabited areas and with remains of the rural society: granaries and mills in disuse.
Good views from the village
Except in rainy season the flow is usually constant and without problems.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
At the beginning you can return to the access path.
Afterwards, and after the rappels, the vegetation closes the escapes quite well.

Access: (machine translated)
From Navia towards Boal on the AS12.
At km 16 turn off to Serandías and continue to Villar de Serandías where we park.

Approach: (machine translated)
We cross the village and take an old cart path that goes down to the river and the mills, this path leads us to an old bridge that no longer exists and an abandoned mill.

Tour: (machine translated)
A first few difficulties of small slopes to reach two short rappels, then we walk along the river until we reach the waterfall of almost 20m, then a flying rappel and two more rappels before reaching the reservoir.

Return: (machine translated)
Continue swimming through the reservoir in a southerly direction until you reach an access with deteriorated wooden stairs. Follow the ascending path that leads back to the village.
