Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Long and somewhat technical descent overshadowed by the proximity of the Bitet. We must take into account the flow and the time of day because it is a canyon where it can easily get dark at night.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
At the dam

Access: (machine translated)
We must go to the French town of Laruns. To do this we cross the Portalet and follow the D934 to Eaux Chaudes, here we leave the car back. You can also leave it further on a track that goes down to the river.
The second car before arriving at Eaux Chaudes we take the track to the left that goes up to Goust, we pass it and arrive at a crossing that indicates the ascent to Besse to the left. We park.

Approach: (machine translated)
In steep climb towards the cabannes of Lusque. At the top there is a path to the right, we follow it and soon leaves us at the entrance of the ravine.

Tour: (machine translated)
More than 30 rappels, some of which can be climbed in a fairly narrow corridor. When we reach the dam we have a loophole and if we continue we will have another 10 rappels left.

Return: (machine translated)
If we leave by the dam, a path on the orographic right leads us to Eaux Chaudes.
If we continue we must cross the Gave d'Ossau and go up on the orographic right to the road.
