Summary:
The valley that formed the Pârâul Rău canyon originates from the southeast of Peak Dușilor (1,531 m) and is a right tributary of the Cormaia river, located in Rodnei Mountains National Park. With a total of 18 abseils, the route runs under the cool shade of trees that continuously forest the valley, a blessing on hot summer days. It has managed to step through a metamorphic layer, forming a route with many drops and verticals, some quite impressive.
