Summary: (machine translated)
Short but fun ravine under the road bridges. It is usually dry but be very careful in stormy weather that the channel is dug due to its strong floods.

Hydrology:
No

Access: (machine translated)
Situated between Altea and Calpe on the N332, we will leave the Mascarat village at pk 164.2 and follow the Freu street down to the bottom, next to the bridge of the ravine. We park the return car here.
With the access car we return to the road and pass the tunnels, at km 165.6 we have a small esplanade on the left and a dump, we can park here.

Approach: (machine translated)
From the access car we can access the ravine surrounding the dump to go down to the riverbed or follow the road to the stone quarry to go down to the riverbed.
From the return car, if we only have one, we will follow the street to turn to Carrer Llevant and go up to the top. At the end of the street we reach a path that takes us to the road almost in front of the dump.

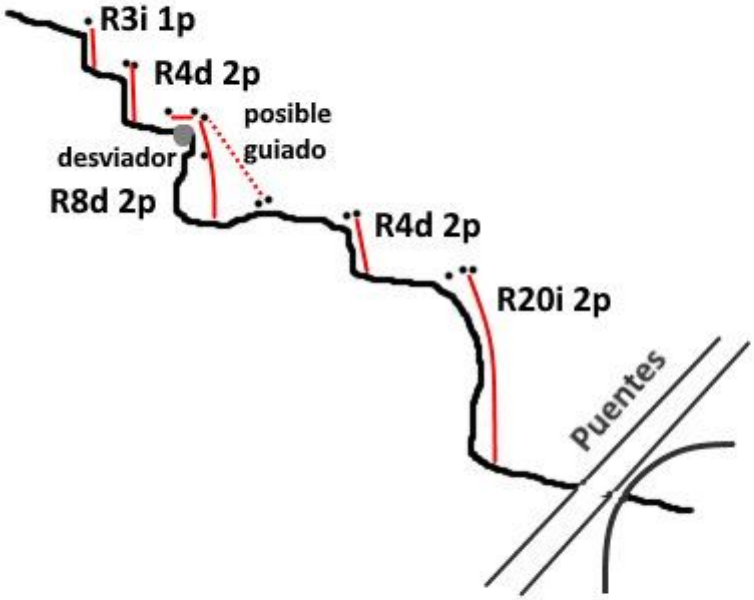

Tour: (machine translated)
A first short rappel, which can be climbed, followed by another equally short one to reach the first interesting rappel, where we will have to mount a diverter and save the pool. For the following ones we will be able to mount a guided one. After this a small rappel and the long rappel of the canyon under the bridges.

Return: (machine translated)
We will follow the riverbed towards the bridge of the village, next to where we have parked.
