Summary: (machine translated)
Interesting canyon if we do it with water (avoid the summer) and much better if we have high car to be able to make combination and save us a while.

Hydrology:
Si

Access: (machine translated)
We are located between Isona and Coll de Nargó on the L511.
Just in the p.k. 24 almost next to the Coll de Bóixols we have the detour to Gavarra. We will take this beautiful road through the Serrat de Porredon, between forests, down to the almost unknown village of Gavarra.
After 4 kms, in a long straight of half a kilometer, just before the Coll de Conseu, we have a track on the right where we can park the access car.
With the return car we will have to continue another two kilometers after a right curve and just before a sharp left curve there is a track on the right, ascending. On the left side of the road we can park.
If we have high car or 4×4 we will be able to get into the track until practically the exit of the creek.

Approach: (machine translated)
With only one car we will have to walk up the road to the point of parking the access car.
From the access parking we only have to follow the track that goes down to the torrent.

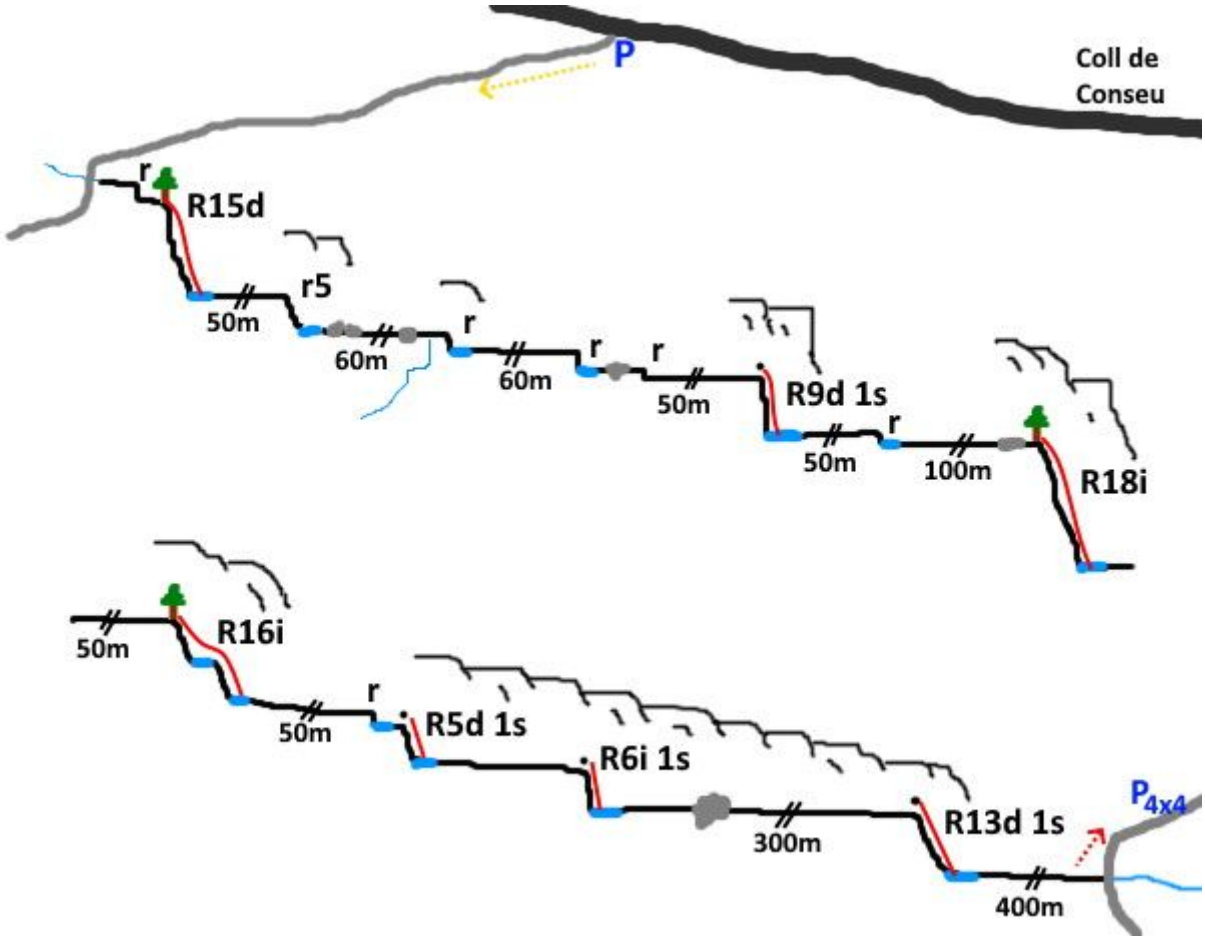

Tour: (machine translated)
Long descent, without great difficulties but with some points of great interest. Much better to do it in spring to make sure that it carries water.

Return: (machine translated)
After the last rappel we will continue along the riverbed until we cross the track. If we have parked here the return will be short, if not we will have to follow all the track to the road.
