Summary: (machine translated)
Generally dry canyon, with natural anchorages and a beautiful vertical of 55m. Magnificent views of Biescas and its surroundings on the descent.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
In the first part

Access: (machine translated)
On the N260 from Sabiñánigo to Biescas. We will continue straight on towards France on the A136 and at the height of pk 1 we cross the stream of the ravine. We can park here or 300m further on in a lay-by on the right. With the access car we return towards Biescas and after 400m we take the detour to the right to Aso de Sobremonte. We will pass the curves, in the third sharp left turn we will have a track in front of us, we get in and park where we can.

Approach: (machine translated)
We continue along the track until we reach the large Acuasta basin (Bco Ollaza), we leave this stream behind and 600m later the track has a bend with a generally dry torrent, we get into the riverbed.

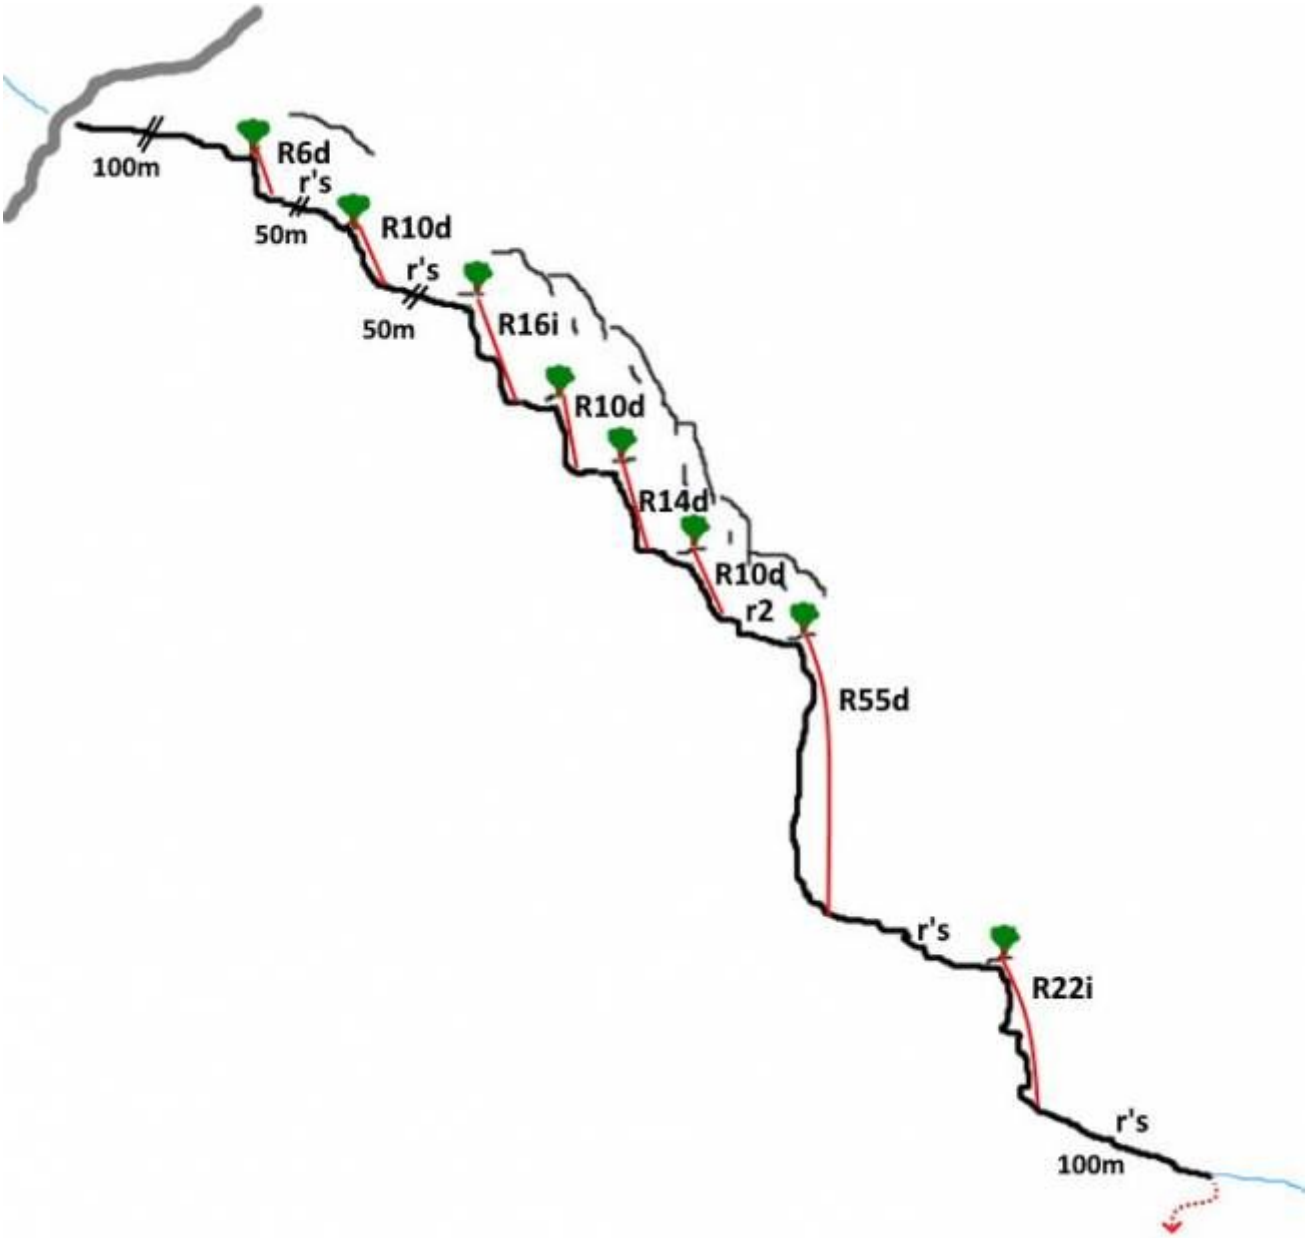

Tour: (machine translated)
A first part of walking and small rappels to approach the great vertical. After it another rappel

Return: (machine translated)
We will exit to the right by an irrigation ditch to look for the same return of Ollaza or we will try to follow down to the road.
