Summary: (machine translated)
Open hiking and swim canyon with some waterfalls and a few places to downclimb. The rocks outside the water are also slippery, especially when it rains.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We leave the N2 highway south of the bridge over the Rivière du Mât and head for the "Cascade du Chien". 750m after this lookout point, we park the car on the righthand side for the exit. A somewhat inconspicuous path emerges from the bushes here.\nWe park the car for access 800m further on at the exit of the tarred road at a picnic area.

Approach: (machine translated)
We now follow the Sentier de la Forêt des Lianes - signpost "Belouve", cross a few smaller streams and then take the hidden tracks to the right to the Bras des Lianes (GPS: -21.034617 , 55.60651; altitude 770m). If we don't find this track, we continue to the river and join the path there.

Return: (machine translated)
After a final 300m run, we see a prominent tree on the right bank (GPS: -21.02721 , 55.610818, altitude 662.5m). An overgrown track begins here, which first runs along the embankment on the river bank and then turns right into the sometimes quite dense undergrowth. Finally, we reach the road right by the car.\nIf we cannot find or miss this exit, we continue walking in the riverbed until we reach the water catchment. After a few meters along the riverbank, we come to a track on the right that also takes us to the road. Now turn right up to the car for the exit.
