Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Simple descent to combine with Bellús, of open character and, like its neighbor, with water only during the rainy season. Ideal time to do it

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Throughout most of the route

Access: (machine translated)
We are located in Berga on the C16 or in Solsona. In both cases you have to take the C26 that joins them.
At the height of Avià, in the p.k. 142,4, there is a turn in the road with a bridge over the Bellús, with a detour to "Cal Grane". We will go along this road until the asphalted road ends. Next to it we will have a damming of the river and a widening where to park.
If we have a tall car we can continue a little further along the track and make a couple of curves but it is not worth much.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will leave by the PR that goes up to Can Regatell, practically heading north and with the stream always on our left. When the trail approaches the riverbed and we see a blue mark, that will be the time to enter the riverbed.

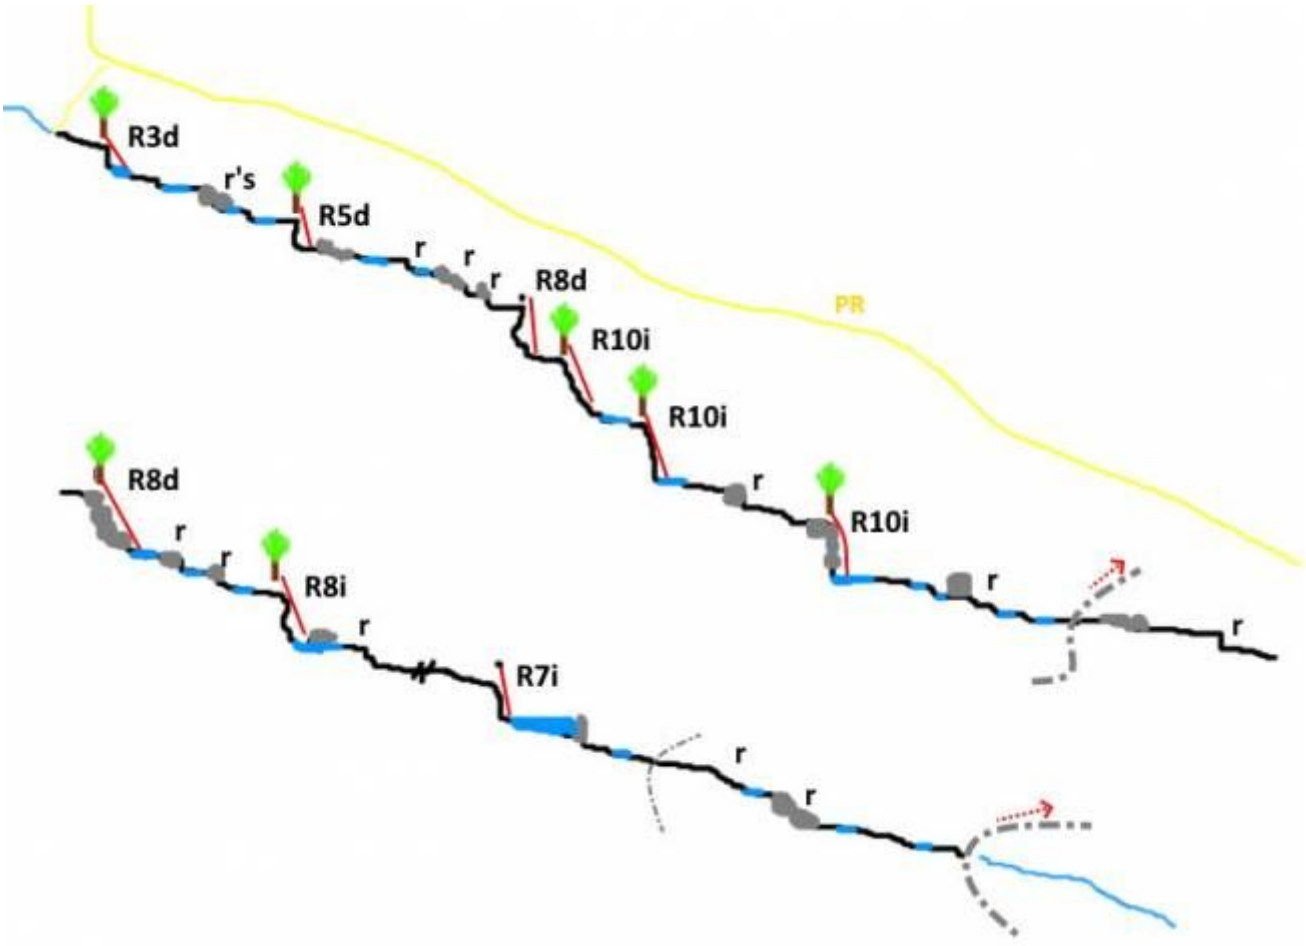

Tour: (machine translated)
Very simple, open and some sections with a lot of vegetation.

Return: (machine translated)
After the last rappel, cross the track, turn left and follow it to the car.
