Summary: (machine translated)
Part I of a short but watery rappel canyon, well frequented. II. Parts forbidden due to discharge of contaminated water.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated) see google maps link under "Links"

Approach: (machine translated)
Directly above the bridge over private property (2020 permitted)

Tour: (machine translated)
Small battle with the water masses, but no problems. 1 ropes ferry (therefore longer rope)

Return: (machine translated)
Up the iron ladders on the embankment and to the road in the left-hand serpentine; instead of moving, it is better for one person to wait here with all the luggage and the other to fetch the car.

Go in downstream of the bridge. Track need some maintenance. Anchors are not the best, mostly for normal water levels. On our trip the water was a little higher. What was nice. We used a floating anchor in some places.
