Résumé: (traduction alternative) Simple gully near Viu de Llevata but with necessary combination of cars. It has a very interesting sports area but the access and the open part detract a lot. To do once, nothing more
Hydrologie: (traduction alternative) On the sporting side, no, it is quite closed
Accès: (traduction alternative) Take the N230 to Pont de Suert. Upon arrival there is a detour to the N260 (Trempe) that in a few kilometers leads to a detour to the left to Malpàs by the LV-5212. Two bridges later there is an area where you can leave the car to return. We will return to the detour and go to Malpàs, before arriving we will take the small road to Castellars and Erta, after Castellars it becomes a track, and after a couple of curves we will find a track on our right that goes down to a pass, in the pass there is a track in front and another one that goes down to the left. We have two options, park here or continue along the track on the left and park below.
Approche: (traduction alternative) If we have parked downstream, we will have the river next to us but we will have a long walk along the river to the ravine area as such. The good thing is that here we can evaluate the flow without having to go for a long walk. If we go from the top we will have to follow the track to the Collada Blanca and from here by a path through the forest down to the river.
Tour: (traduction alternative) No major difficulties other than those of spring and its high flow rates
Retour: (traduction alternative) We will follow the river almost to the confluence with Viu where we will find a path on the right (an old irrigation channel) that leads us to some meadows on the right. From here we can already see the road
