Résumé: (traduction alternative) Canyon that can be divided into Upper and Intermediate (or lower), the intermediate part can be combined with Coiteladas. The upper part is of high geological interest and has a medium technical level. The intermediate section is above all of great effort because it is a succession of skills in which it is necessary to be very careful if the flow is high. It is essential to request authorization https://montanaregulada.org/area/reggo-de-carballido

Approche: (traduction alternative) Barrancos Río Carballido in map We continue along the same track with the Carballido River on the right until we reach a bend where the river crosses. We access here
Tour: (traduction alternative) At the bridge we will evaluate the flow in case it is high. Keep in mind that the intermediate section receives more water from other tributaries. The descent is very fun and different, the first part is very vertical and continuous rappels. The second part is of abseiling, slides and much more water.
Retour: (traduction alternative) Once we arrive at the cave we can exit to the right and climb halfway up the slope to the parking lot or continue to the Feienteiras ravine and go left by its exit. In this case two cars are needed.
